PRAGUE—Premier Syrový assures Slovak prime minister of quick action affecting Slovak autonomy.

PARIS—Czechs retain Skoda arms works in negotiations, financiers hear.

ROME, Oct. 7.—(UP)—A new conflict between the Vatican and the Italian government appeared to be brewing tonight as result of the Fascist grand council's sweeping anti-Jewish decrees, particularly its ban on mixed marriages. Vatican prelates foresaw the possibility of a controversy, and the Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Holy See, protested editorially but with reserve against the marriage decrees which affect not only Jews but Italian gentiles.

Meanwhile it appeared the measures expelling Jews would apply to about 200 American Jews, mostly businessmen. United States Ambassador William Phillips intervened on the behalf of these Jews with Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano yesterday, it was disclosed today.

Phillips cautioned that any discrimination against American Jews in Italy might jeopardize the status under the reciprocal Italy-United States treaty. If the communication contained a warning, it was made entirely by implication, observers pointed out. Virginia Gayda, editor of the Giornale D'Italia, which often speaks for Premier Mussolini, said that several clauses of the Italy-Vatican concordat might require revision. There was uncertainty whether the church would consent to such changes, particularly in the existing church right to marry two Catholics in religious ceremony, no matter to what race they belong.

F.D.R. STUDIES WAY TO COMBAT SPYING

Co-ordination of Counter-Espionage Agencies Is Considered by President

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP) An increase in foreign spying in the United States in the last 10 years, President Roosevelt said today, has led him to consider co-ordination of various federal investigating agencies.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference he was giving serious consideration to possible improvements in methods of thwarting naval and military espionage in this country. He added that while foreign spying may not now be on the increase, it had grown substantially the last 10 years.

One possible approach to the problem, he asserted, might be the creation of new administrative machinery to co-ordinate investigations by the military and naval intelligence services, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and various treasury agencies.

Mr. Roosevelt announced that Professor Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school and Mrs. Frankfurter would come to the summer White House tomorrow and remain as overnight guests. Frankfurter has been widely mentioned as a possible appointee to the existing supreme court vacancy.

V. L. Stanley To Wed Aide In His Office

State Pardon and Parole Commission Is Scene of New Romance.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Lightning may never strike twice in the same place but Dan Cupid does. He scored his second hit of the month yesterday at the offices of the state pardon and parole commission when it was learned that Chairman Vivian L. Stanley, of the commission, will be married today to Mrs. Nena Turner Etheridge, of McDonough, an assistant in the office.

Judge G. A. Johns, a member of the commission, was married to Myrtle Booth, last month.

The commission chairman was all smiles yesterday as he received the congratulations of his employees and fellow state officials. The wedding will take place at 11 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Paul Turner, of McDonough. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church (Atlanta) will perform the ceremony. Mrs. Turner will entertain at an informal breakfast immediately following the ceremony.

Mrs. Etheridge is widely known in Atlanta social and musical circles. For several years she was a member of the choir of the First Methodist church.

Daniel Tobin, President of Powerful Teamsters' Union, Appeals for a United Labor Movement

F.D.R. MEDIATION TALK IS REVIVED

Leader Reveals Proposal for Intervention Was Made Earlier in Year.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 7.—(AP) William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called today for a special session of his executive council after Daniel Tobin, head of the International Teamsters' Union, appealed to the 58th annual convention for labor peace and a united labor movement.

Green's call for the council meeting immediately revived speculation the federation's high command may soon take decisive action, not only on the question of making peace with John L. Lewis' CIO, but also on the personal peace plea from President Roosevelt.

Gaining the convention floor just as the federation leaders started their drive to win endorsement of their plans seeking amendments to the Wagner labor act, Tobin thundered an appeal for the delegates "not to leave this convention until we make further efforts to come together with the contending parties in the labor movement."

During Tobin's speech, Green rose from his chair and paced across the speakers' rostrum. As soon as Tobin finished, the American Federation of Labor's president swung his gavel and announced the session would adjourn for lunch.

As the surprised delegates streamed from the coliseum, Daniel W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, disclosed to newspapermen that he had approached President Roosevelt indirectly last March with a proposal the president try to effect mediation of labor's family quarrel by appointing a three-man commission.

Tracy said Mr. Roosevelt did not feel at liberty at the time to inject himself into the controversy, and the prospect of presidential mediation vanished until it was revived here after receipt of the President's peace plea.

Bulldogs Defeat Furman, 38 to 7

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Unleashing a powerful running attack underneath an effective aerial barrage, the University of Georgia Bulldogs crushed the Purple Hurricanes of Furman University, 38 to 7, today to remain undefeated for the 1938 campaign.

Furman, outweighted and overpowered, staged two sustained drives, one of them netting the lone touchdown and the other bogging down at the 20-yard line. The Georgia squad rolled up a net of 350 yards rushing to 51 and collected 22 first downs to 5.

The Hurricanes twice checked Georgia drives in the scoreless opening period, but the Bulldogs, with Sophomores Earl Hise and Billy Mims and a mile of a junior halfback, Dooley Mathews, running wild, scored almost at will in the last three periods.

FAIR WILL HONOR GEORGIA EDITORS

Barbecue To Be Served at Noon to Newspapermen and Their Families.

Georgia's editors and newspaper employees will be honor guests at the Southeastern Fair and National Livestock Show today as "Georgia Press Day" is observed.

Newspapermen and the families from all sections of the state have been invited and President Mike Benton said he has prepared for the largest group of newspapermen in the 24-year history of the fair.

A big barbecue will be served at noon at the Log Cabin across the lake from Lakewood park and all the newspaper visitors have been requested to register at the Southeastern Fair office as soon as possible and get credentials for today's program.

Immediately following the luncheon Benton and his aides will be host to the visitors on an inspection tour of the exhibits and midway.

A special fireworks program has been prepared for 9 o'clock tonight in the three-ring fireworks circus in front of the grandstand. Roy McGinty, vice president of the Georgia Press Association, of the Calhoun Times, will be one of the speakers on a radio broadcast.

State Can't Refund Tax Envoy Spent

Official Says New Law Is Necessary To Meet Latvian's Demand.

A legislative appropriation will be necessary for the minister of Latvia to get a gasoline tax refund of $1.94 from the state of Georgia.

That's what Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head decided yesterday, after grappling 24 hours with the grave international problem and after getting a ruling from Assistant Attorney General Broadus B. Zellar.

The envoy, Dr. Alfred Bilmants, demanded the refund through Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who wrote to Governor Rivers, who passed along the correspondence to Commissioner Head.

The $1.94 represents money disbursed by the diplomat on a recent motor trip. He claims exemption through a reciprocal agreement between his republic and this country.

"The state constitution provides that no money shall be paid out for any purpose without an appropriation from the general assembly," Zellar informed Head, "and this holds true despite any agreement between Latvia and the United States."

Head said he wished he "had paid the $1.94 out of his own pocket," opining, "I like to steer clear of foreign entanglements."

RAMBLIN' WRECK RATTLES AT TECH

Hundreds of Alumni Return With Much To Sing For; Recall Old Days.

The stirring strains of "Ramblin' Wreck From Georgia Tech" swelled into a mighty crescendo last night as hundreds of Georgia Tech alumni came back to celebrate the golden anniversary of their alma mater.

They had much to sing for—these graduates of yesteryear. They were in the midst of an elaborate two-day anniversary program. They were gathered on the eve of one of the biggest football games on Tech's 1938 schedule. And they were "toasting" to the dramatic development of Georgia Tech from a small, two-building trade school to a position of educational and technical leadership in the nation.

There were distinguished visitors, notably General Blanton Winship, a native of Macon, Ga., and now governor general of Puerto Rico, who is participating in the celebration as official delegate from the University of Puerto Rico. General Winship yesterday addressed a luncheon-meeting of the Atlanta Masonic Club, No. 151.

There was much handshaking and exchanging of greetings. Fellow students who had not seen

WEATHER TO AID TECH OPPONENTS

Fine football weather, fair and brisk, will aid Atlanta's good fortune and Tech's bad luck today, the Weather Bureau reported last night. The first major offensive of fall is expected with scattered frosts forecast for Cleveland, Buffalo and Boston both reported low temperature ranging from 46 to 66 predicted for Atlanta. Any thought Tech had of wearing down a series of Notre Dame teams with the help of the southern climate must be abandoned.

The temperature drop is part of a cool wave that spread over the eastern states yesterday, bringing a light frost to Cincinnati, a hard sub-freezing weather to Cleveland, Buffalo and Boston both reported low readings of 38, while the thermometer dropped to 32 in Pittsburgh.

Explorers Find Natives of Isolated New Guinea Are Still Living Blissfully in Stone Age Period

Hitherto Unknown Land Penetrated by Richard Archbold Expedition.

Editor's Note: Life in New Guinea, one of the world's wildest and most isolated spots, is still in the Stone Age period, members of Richard Archbold's scientific expedition to New Guinea reported in a short wave radio interview with the United Press. It was the first detailed word of the explorers who crossed the Pacific several months ago in the flying boat Guba to explore a hitherto unknown land.

By WENDEL BURCH. (Copyright, 1938, by United Press.) HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 7.—(UP)—The interior of New Guinea in the Dutch East Indies is an unspoiled paradise of bird, animal and floral life where the natives still are living in the Stone Age period, members of the Richard Archbold scientific expedition said today in a short-wave radio interview. Spanning 4,200 miles of ocean, the radio brought the United Press into contact with the explorers who several months ago crossed the Pacific in the flying igator for the young Standard Oil heir, and Harold Ramm, Archbold's radio operator, described the natives as savage-looking but actually timid people.

(Archbold is shown in the adjoining picture ready to drop supplies by parachute to a ground-exploring party. He is sitting at an opening in the plane, listening for the pilot to signal for the drop through the earphones he wears.) The men trade women, sweet potatoes, sweet corn and pigs among one another. They carry wooden spears, bows and arrows, and stone axes. They have no metals of any kind and no money of any form.

When the expedition first entered the interior, the Dutch government provided an escort of 65 soldiers to protect the explorers from the natives.

For three weeks, there wasn't a sign of an islander, Yancey said.

HARTSFIELD NAMES BOND COMMISSION FOR CITY PROJECTS

Mayor Will Head Delegation Seeking PWA Extension of Approval Deadline.

Preparing for a "tooth and nail" fight to pass the bond issue November 2, Mayor Hartsfield yesterday named eight prominent Atlantans as members of the city bond commission to supervise expenditure of the city's $4,000,000 in bonds if they are voted.

Also, he announced he and J. A. Ragsdale, chairman of the county commission, will head a delegation to go to Washington next Friday to seek extension of the time for approval of PWA grants to Atlanta and Fulton county.

Bond Commissioners.
Appointed on the city bond commission were: First ward, W. A. Vernoy, real estate owner; second ward, Dr. William A. Medlock, druggist; third ward, T. D. Gibbs, merchant and property owner; fourth ward, Charles M. Brown, manufacturing company official; fifth ward, Frank Neely, department store executive; sixth ward, J. Henry Porter, prominent attorney, and from the city-at-large, Luther H. Randall, business man, and Robert Strickland, banker.

Neely, who will call a meeting of the new commission soon, and Strickland are also members of the county's 14-member bond commission to supervise spending of the county's $2,500,000 in bonds if voted.

Commission Co-operation.
Mayor Hartsfield pointed out that the city and the county bond commissions are to work in co-operation in carrying out the plans for the $15,000,000 public improvement program.

Vernoy and Neely are veterans on bond commissions. Both served on the 1926 bond commission and Vernoy was a member of the commission supervising the metropolitan sewer system bonds.

Congressman Robert Ramoapack yesterday afternoon conferred with the mayor relative to making an appointment with high WPA officials next week in Washington.

Hartsfield said C. F. Palmer, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the council finance committee, and Neely are among those invited to go to the capital with him and Ragsdale.

He asserted he was confident the PWA will extend the deadline and make provision for approval of Atlanta's and Fulton county's projects "if we convince them we are in deadly earnest about these bonds."

"Steering Commission."
The mayor plans to name a large "steering committee" next week to aid in publicizing the bond issue and to help get the people to the polls November 2. He asked Neely to call the new bond commission into session. He named no chairman but left it to the commission to select its officers.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, influenza, etc., you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with a cough, chest cold, influenza, etc., which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membrane and to loosen and expel germs and phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

'I Wouldn't Raise A Baby To Fight,' Garbo Declares

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(UP)—Greta Garbo, who wouldn't say aye, yes or no about whether she is married to Leopold Stokowski, returned to the United States today to announce that babies grow up to be soldiers so she doesn't want to have a baby.

With a new graciousness, to reporters, the Swedish actress received about 100 of them in the liner Kungsholms lounge.

Questioned about reports of her marriage to Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra leader with whom she vacationed for most of 10 months in Europe, Miss Garbo said a little archly:

"If I were married, I am sure you would know, for nothing escapes you."

Well, would she like to have a baby herself, such as the one born in mid-ocean to Mrs. S. T. Snegoz-Sluzas, a Latvian?

"The world seems too difficult," she answered. "I would not want to send my children to war. I don't think I would want a child, though I know nothing of politics."

IT'S 'OPEN HOUSE' AT AIRPORT TODAY
Visitors Invited To Inspect Large Establishment.

"Open house" will be observed from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock today at the municipal airport in celebration of National Air Travel Week. Visitors are invited to inspect the establishment from weather vane to engine rooms, J. H. Gray, manager, announced yesterday.

Declaring that "an airport is just as important to a city as other transportation facilities," Mr. Gray pointed out that Atlanta's airport, with all its diversified industries, gives employment to more than 400 persons, with an annual payroll of about $1,000,000.

"Improvements under way deserve the public's attention, while the weather bureau, the army buildings, the hangars, offices and engine-building rooms are all worth coming out to see," Gray said. "Large airliners from seven points of the compass may be seen landing every day."

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE BURNS IN MANCHESTER
MANCHESTER, Ga., Oct. 7.—A fire, said to have originated in the room of the Mutual Telephone company, completely destroyed the exchange here this morning.

The night operator, on hearing a cry of "fire," tried to turn in the alarm, but found the wires had burned, so ran to the city hall to sound the alarm. The telephone company probably will rebuild the structure.

100,000 VISITORS POURING INTO CITY

Stellar Attraction Is Tech Game With Fair Drawing Thousands.

ported last night that more were coming.

All inbound vehicles, buses, trains, planes, automobiles had capacity burdens.

It just seemed the folks were determined on a holiday—no matter what—and there was a most advantageous conjunction of events to make it possible.

Weather Co-operates.
Even the weather was co-operating. Crisp, fair days are here and in immediate prospect to stimulate action and add that exhilarating touch of early autumn known to the trade as "zing."

As the stellar attraction, of course, the Tech-Notre Dame football game at Grant field ranked first in the causes for the inrush of glamorous and beglamored visitors.

Hardly second, and playing to some of the largest audiences in its history, the Southeastern Fair at Lakewood park was doing its best—and a very acceptable best—to make the town fairly creak with its burden of humanity.

Alumni Pouring In.
A full-size event of itself, one which is enlarging, the football crowd enormously, is the 50th anniversary celebration of Georgia Tech, drawing hundreds of alumni, their wives, sons and daughters, from all parts of the country, and especially the southeast.

These were under way or in immediate prospect.

There was more. Naturally, delegates to the National Association of Daily Newspaper Advertising Managers, which opens its convention Monday, could see little reason for not arriving somewhat ahead for those various conferences—so necessary to the operations of any right-minded organization—which must precede the formal gatherings.

Hundreds of the south's most experienced specialists in mental illness are here, or coming, for the scientifically important sessions of the Southern Psychiatric Association.

The first annual Georgia Exposition is getting under way Monday with a series of exhibits relating to Georgia's resources which is expected to prove a highly potent attraction.

The Southern States Naturopathic convention is in session. There is the meeting of the Georgia body of King's Daughters and Sons.

In fact—
"It is to be the largest crowd Atlanta has had," declares Faber A. Bollinger, executive vice president of the Convention and Visitors' Bureau. "It's immense—in deed, it's swell!"

And Business...
Nobody was giving it a thought, but the fact remained that all of these visitor swarms spending money and swelling the channels of trade no little.

(Correction: One man was giving it thought, anyway. The official statistician of the bureau estimated that a convention delegate spends $11.25 a day, and a football fan considerably more.)

CARTER H. PRATHER FINAL RITES HELD

Funeral services for Carter H. Prather, 57, who died Wednesday night at his home, 800 Penn avenue, N. E., after a brief illness, were conducted yesterday morning at the residence by the Rev. Theodore S. Will. Burial was in West View cemetery, under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

A native of near Waco, Texas, Mr. Prather was educated in Virginia and attended Washington and Lee University. Before coming to Atlanta more than 12 years ago, he was engaged in the real estate, lumber and automobile business.

each other in years clasped hands, slapped backs and swapped warm "hellos." Since graduation many of them have blazed a path of success in engineering and business.

It was great to see each other again, they said.

And memories of student days came rolling back like the ocean's tide. There were graduates from the classes of the early 1890's. They had slightly graying hair and some moved with a faltering step.

There were graduates of the 1900's, the 1910's, the 1920's. And then there were some of more recent times—those who still have the air of a college student.

Many of the alumni found their way back to gayly-decorated fraternity houses where in years past they stood in awed silence as they heard mysterious words and took the solemn oath of brotherhood. They recalled countless "bull sessions" and clouds of tobacco smoke. Some of these sessions ran far into the night, they remembered, and almost spelled doom for the young participants who neglected to prepare the next day's assignments.

They laughed as they harked back to those days. The young fellows enjoyed it, too. They knew something about those "bull sessions."

All of the visiting graduates gathered last night in the Tech dining hall for an alumni banquet given by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech. Frank M. Sprattin, president of the Tech Alumni Association, presided and four graduates representing different periods, gave brief talks.

They set up a new time at the banquet. Instead of talking in terms of B. C. or A. D., they described things as happening in G. T.

Banquet Speakers.

Berry Maxwell, of Cleveland, Ohio, graduate of G. T. 1902, talked about the period from G. T. 1888 to G. T. 1902. L. W. Robert Jr., of Atlanta and Washington, graduate of the class of G. T. 1908, reminisced on the years from G. T. 1903 through G. T. 1908. Frank Hooper Jr., Atlanta attorney, who was graduated in G. T. 1916, scanned the period from G. T. 1909 to G. T. 1916. And as the grand finale, Ivan Allen Jr., of the class of G. T. 1934, commented on the years from G. T. 1917 through G. T. 1938.

Others who appeared on the program included W. H. Glenn, of Atlanta, who was the first student to assist on Tech on October 8, 1888, and H. L. Smith, of Dalton, the first man to receive a diploma from the institution. Smith and the late George Crawford made up the first graduating class.

A quiet moment was observed in memory of the alumni and faculty members who had died.

"Top of the List."
"Georgia Tech stands today at the top of the list of technical schools, and in the hearts of her alumni and friends she stands higher than all the rest," Sprattin said. "Fifty years is a very short time when compared with the age of most of the outstanding schools and colleges throughout this country and the world, but there are few, if any, that can boast of as successful 50 years."

He praised Dr. Brittain the faculty and officials of the institution and the students who have passed through her classrooms.

"Dr. Brittain came to Georgia Tech as president on August 1, 1922, and during all the years since that time he has given all of his time, strength and splendid executive ability to the handling of the affairs of the school," Sprattin said.

The fiftieth anniversary program will continue today. The academic procession will assemble at 9:15 o'clock this morning and commemorative exercises will be held in the new gymnasium-auditorium at 9:30 o'clock.

Marion Smith, chairman of the Board of Regents of the University System, will preside and the Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, bishop of the diocese of Atlanta, will deliver the invocation.

Rivers to Speak.
After a welcome by Dr. Brittain, Governor Rivers will speak on "What Georgia Tech Means to the State of Georgia."

The principal speaker for the exercises will be Dr. Frank Pierrepont Graves, president of the University of the State of New York and president of the Phi Beta Kappa society. He will be introduced by Chancellor S. V. Sanford.

Also on today's program will be President Brittain's luncheon for official delegates at 12:30 o'clock at the Tech dining hall. The football game between the Yellow Jackets and Notre Dame is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock. All fraternities will hold open house at 5 o'clock.

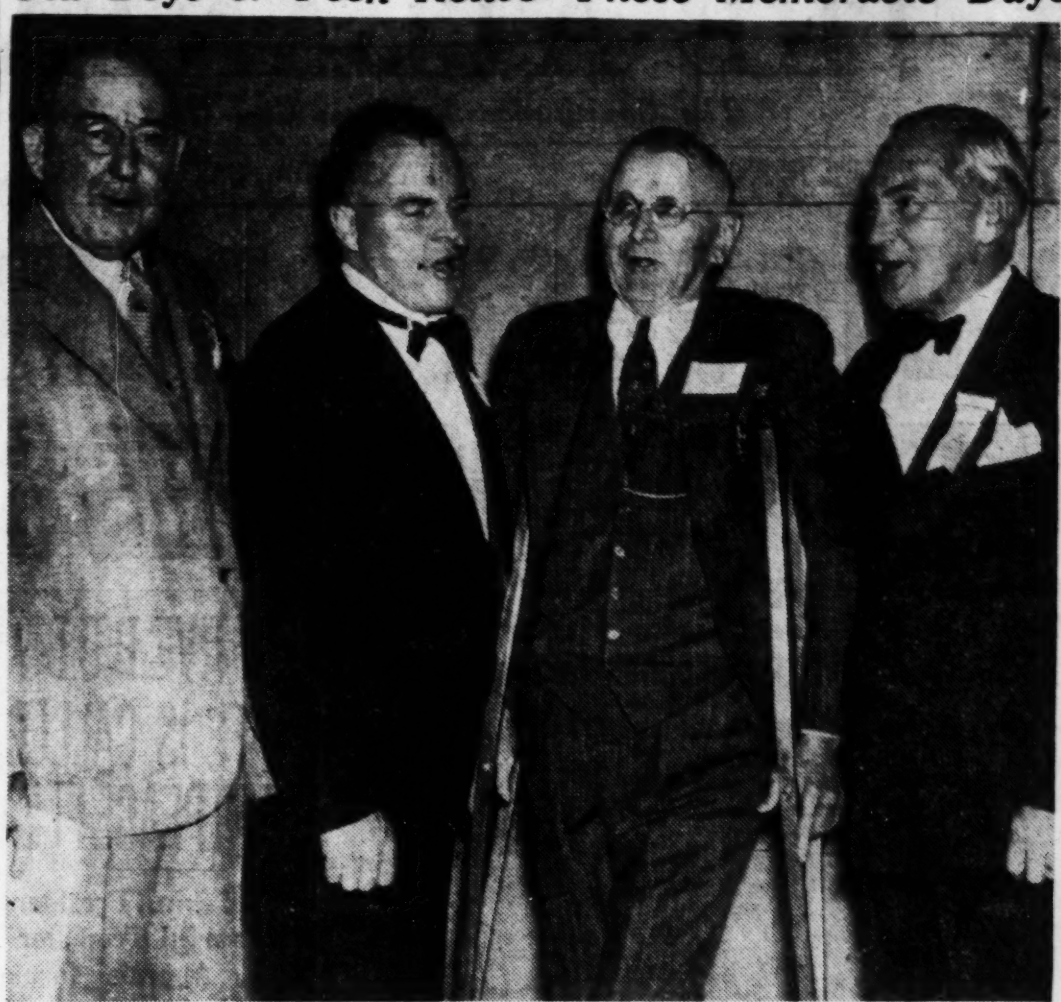

The last of a series of four dances will begin at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon and at 9 o'clock tonight.

Presentation of a charter to the Georgia Phi Beta Kappa society will be made at a dinner at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. Graves will present the charter. Members wishing to attend the dinner were asked to communicate with Dean J. G. Stipe at Emory University, or the office of President Brittain at Georgia Tech.

ORCHESTRA LEADER WILL SALUTE TECH
Will Osborne, orchestra leader, will salute Georgia Tech during his broadcast from 9 to 9:30 o'clock tonight over the NBC blue network.

The tribute to Tech on its 50th anniversary will consume approximately three minutes. It will consist of a reading by Osborne on the history and outstanding characters at Tech. The orchestra will provide a background with a rendition of "Ramblin' Wreck From Georgia Tech."

Old Boys of Tech Relive Those Memorable Days

Lightness and gaiety and the sentiment born of revisiting memorable scenes mingled last night at Tech as alumni gathered for President M. L. Brittain's banquet. A notable quartet, shown, left to right, were W. H. Glenn, first to enter; Frank M. Sprattin, alumni president; H. L. Smith, of Dalton, first to graduate, and Lawrence Wood (Chip) Robert Jr., as they broke out with "Ramblin' Wreck."

General Winship Urges Cementing Of Friendships Between Americas

Governor General of Puerto Rico Says Island Can Serve as Stepping Stone in Relationship; Is in Atlanta for Georgia Tech Celebration.

By LUKE GREENE.

Puerto Rico can serve as a stepping stone to closer relations between North and South America, General Blanton Winship, governor general of this island possession of the United States said yesterday as he arrived to participate in the fiftieth anniversary celebration at Georgia Tech.

General Winship, who is a native of Macon, Ga., is official delegate from the University of Puerto Rico. He addressed a luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Masonic Club, No. 151, yesterday.

Hemisphere Friendship.
In view of the present situation in Europe, General Winship, who has spent the greater part of his life in the army, said the two Americas must overlook no opportunity to cement their friendship.

"North America and South America are going to come closer together, since this disturbance in Europe," he said. "President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull have consistently emphasized such a policy and it now seems more inevitable than ever before."

As a first move in this direction, General Winship advocated the stimulation of more business between Georgia and Puerto Rico.

"We need Georgia's cotton for our embroidery industry and fertilizer for our agriculture," he said. "And, likewise, you need our needlework, our sugar, rugs and other products."

Puerto Rico forms a kind of meeting ground for the two Americas, the Governor explained. Many students from both continents attending school there are prepared for careers in either of the countries. He pointed to the possibilities of this practice in the future.

The University of Puerto Rico has approximately 7,000 students, he said. It has one of the finest schools of tropical medicine to be found in the world. The Governor added that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has indicated a school of tropical agriculture and school of tropical forestry may be established there in the future.

In discussing the island's resources, General Winship said it has 1,800,000 people, or approximately 520 per square mile. The people who are engaged in agriculture are prosperous, he said.

Shipments of embroidery work alone amounted to $21,000,000 in 1936, he declared. Sugar is also an important export, more than 100,000 people being employed in this industry. In 1936 the island ranked as the sixth best customer of the United States.

As a further move to improving the relations between the two Americas, he said the island is planning the establishment of a perennial exposition to display the products of both continents.

Asked about the recent attempt on his life, he dismissed it by saying "the trouble was merely caused by a bunch of fanatics." A bullet narrowly missed the Governor several months ago while he was reviewing a military parade near San Juan.

The Governor, who is a great lover of fishing and hunting, said he hoped to be able to come back to Macon and spend the rest of his days resting and angling for trout.

He explained, however, that the island of Puerto Rico is a haven for fishermen, since the trout there grow as much as 13 inches in a year. The island has 1,300 streams, he said.

Praising the attitude of his people, he said they had the ability to smile through their troubles. There are no holdups or robberies on the island, he said, the only disturbances being caused by a few fanatics.

NEW GUINEA NATIVES LIVE IN STONE AGE

Finally they were noticed peeking from behind bushes and other places of concealment in the lush tropical growth.

As the natives grew bolder, they entered the expedition camps, offering presents of pigs and sweet potatoes.

At one of the camps the giant Guba, the flying boat which is used in ferrying supplies into the interior, was at rest when several natives approached it.

Through the sign language they asked Rambo whether it was "a man or a woman bird."

They stroked its sleek steel sides but when a mechanic turned on the powerful motors, they fled in terror.

Rambo said he had acquired an excellent collection of bows and arrows in a trade in which the natives accepted 13 feet of old wire, a quarter-roll of friction tape, and a burned-out radio tube, which they carried away as treasures.

During the two and one-half months the expedition has been at Hollandia, they have established a camp on Lake Habema, at an 11,000-foot altitude surrounded by 15,000-foot mountains, and on the Idenburg river. The lake is 160 miles west of Hollandia and the river 50 miles closer to the principal city.

for fishermen, since the trout there grow as much as 13 inches in a year. The island has 1,300 streams, he said.

Praising the attitude of his people, he said they had the ability to smile through their troubles. There are no holdups or robberies on the island, he said, the only disturbances being caused by a few fanatics.

HARVARD YOUTHS ATTACK PARADE

Extension of Probe to College Suggested.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—(AP)—An attack by Harvard freshmen on an American Legion junior band composed of youngsters from 8 to 16 years old, brought official condemnation today and a suggestion from Mayor John Lyons that his youth commission studying juvenile delinquency broaden its scope to include the Harvard yard.

Four students were arrested in connection with the attempt last night to break up a legion parade in the university city and were ordered to appear in court October 18 on charges of interrupting and disturbing a public assembly.

"A Harvard student is no different from any poor boy from any other part of Cambridge," Mayor Lyons asserted. "If a poor boy indulged in such disgraceful tactics, everyone would be demanding that he be sent to jail."

TALMADGE - HOWELL SPAT IS BELIEVED '40 RACE MANEUVER

Defeated Senate Candidate
Renews Attack on Action of Macon Convention.

By the Associated Press.
Followers of political trends speculated yesterday on whether the current spat between Eugene Talmadge and Hugh Howell, former political allies, was a maneuver by the former Governor for a 1940 attempt to win a third term as chief executive.

While Talmadge rested on his Forsyth farm after his unsuccessful contest on the floor of the state Democratic convention at Macon Wednesday to prevent re-nomination of Senator George, the only concrete political development was announcement by Secretary of State John B. Wilson that entries of independent candidates for office would be accepted until midnight Saturday.

Election Requirement.
Previously the impression was that the deadline was last midnight. The law requires independent candidates to qualify at least 30 days prior to the general election, this year to be held November 8.

Talmadge, twice Governor and twice defeated in the Democratic primary for United States senator, charged the failure of his contest at the Macon convention to Howell, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee during Talmadge's regime as Governor.

Talmadge said Howell "sold the Talmadge crowd down the river" in selection of delegates. Each gubernatorial candidate has the privilege of naming delegates to the convention from those counties which he carries.

Howell said Talmadge's charge was "untrue," and said "on last Tuesday night, before the convention on Wednesday, Eugene Talmadge told Tom Linder, his former executive secretary and one of his closest friends, that if Hugh Howell would fire all the delegates from 18 counties and let him (Talmadge) name these delegates, that Talmadge would support Hugh Howell for Governor in 1940."

Support Offer.
Howell said "I refused to do this because he was asking me to do something I had no legal or moral right to do, and he knew it, but Talmadge was offering to support me for Governor in 1940 if I would comply with his request."

Talmadge, in the statement to which Howell replied, said he believed 95 per cent of his followers voted for Howell. "I first thought that they were making a mistake at the time and forewarned them. Now they know, Hugh Howell won't do!" Talmadge declared.

Former Governor Talmadge gave out the following statement on the result of the Macon convention:

"The Democratic convention refused a recount. In other words, they let Senator George make them a goat. I entered the race in the Democratic primary. I am not a bolter and will not be one. I think that the convention and the Democratic executive committee made a serious error."

"Checking figures and a recount is the fundamental principle of business and is universally recognized by gentlemen. There are practically no laws governing primaries in Georgia. The recent primary in Georgia has been a challenge to the people that we need laws. The contest just completed before the convention in Macon will serve the purpose of waking up the people of Georgia to the necessity of laws to protect the ballot box. I have always fought for this and will continue to do so."

MARTHA RAY and DAVE HOPE

Raye for Martha! She Arranges To Wed Arranger

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—(P)—Martha Raye's press agent believes in doing things up right, so he put Martha on the phone.

Reporter: "When do you and Dave Rose leave for Mexico?"
Martha: "Any minute now. Boy, am I nervous! We're going to drive straight through to Encarnada. By 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, we'll be married. Who's going with us? Jimmie Fiddler (he's the radio gossip) and his wife. We're taking pictures now. Say, I haven't eaten yet. We gotta eat on the way down there. Well, g'bye."

The press agent then excused Martha, explaining she had to pose some more. He said Martha'd be back here with her new husband, who arranges her music, Sunday night.

LEROY DENNY DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Was General Manager of Food Sales Company;
Native Georgian.

LeRoy Denny, 44, general manager of the Food Sales Company, Inc., suffered a heart attack about 8:30 o'clock last night as he read a newspaper in the living room of his home, 755 Cumberland road, N. E., and died before a physician could be summoned.

Mr. Denny, his wife and their son, LeRoy Denny Jr., had just finished dinner. He had been at his office all day as usual and apparently was in good health.

A native of Hogansville, Ga., Mr. Denny came to Atlanta more than 20 years ago. About 10 years ago he organized the wholesale food company and was its active head.

He was active in the Associated Reform Presbyterian church, being chairman of the board of deacons. He was a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner.

Surviving, besides his wife and son, are his father, S. B. Denny, and a sister, Mrs. T. H. Collier, both of Hogansville.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

CHURCH IN DECATUR TO HONOR PASTOR

Dr. D. P. McGeachy Has Served Presbyterian Congregation for 20 Years.

A special service will be held at the Decatur Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock tomorrow in observance of the 20 years of service of Dr. D. P. McGeachy, pastor.

A reception in honor of Dr. and Mrs. McGeachy will be held at 7:30 o'clock Friday night in the Sunday school building, Sycamore and Church streets.

Under Dr. McGeachy's direction, the congregation has grown from 500 to more than 1,300. He has served as president of the Atlanta Christian Council, moderator of the synod of Georgia, chairman of the Atlanta World Court committee, and as a trustee of Agnes Scott College.

Red Cross Speaker.
The Rev. J. T. McMullen, field secretary of the American Red Cross, will be guest speaker at the morning service tomorrow at the Hemphill Avenue Methodist church in observance of "Rally Day." The Rev. Rudolph Baker is pastor.

Mrs. Fanny Freeman Crosby, who celebrates her 101st birthday tomorrow, will be honored at a special service at the Inman Park Baptist church. Mrs. Crosby is a charter member of the church and an honorary member of the Women's Bible Class.

The Aycock-Harding evangelistic party of Bethany, Okla., will close a revival series at the First Church of the Nazarene with a special service at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night. The revival has been in progress two weeks.

Dr. Charles C. Jarrell, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow morning at the Calvary Methodist church. "Old hymn night" will be observed at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

The newly acquired and remodeled educational building of the North Atlanta Baptist church will be dedicated tomorrow morning and the new organ will be dedicated tomorrow night. It was announced yesterday by the Rev. J. F. Mitchell, pastor.

The Rev. J. A. Seaback will fill the pulpit of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow in the absence of Dr. John L. Yost, the pastor, who is attending the eleventh biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America now in session at Baltimore.

Revival services will begin tomorrow at the Owl Rock Methodist church and will continue throughout the week. The Rev. Graham Davis, pastor, will preach and the public is invited.

W. W. Gaines will speak to the Men's Bible Class of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, continuing a series of talks on "The Ten Commandments and the Teachings of Jesus."

Judge Jesse M. Wood will speak at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow morning at the Peachtree Road Methodist church. His talk will be an introduction to the national observance of Childhood and Youth Week, October 16-21, in which the church is co-operating.

A series of evangelistic meetings will be started tomorrow at the Atlanta Gospel Tabernacle, 850 Euclid avenue, by Mrs. George Minter, of Warren, Ohio. Services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and 7:30 each night through the week except Saturday.

Will Conduct Revival

Dr. Joseph Owen, above, will conduct revival services at Mary Branan Memorial Methodist church, located at the corner of Whitehall street and Whitehall terrace, beginning tomorrow morning. He is widely known as an evangelist and is a descendant of many prominent preachers. Services will be held at 7:30 o'clock each night next week.

CHARLESTON NEEDS CITED BY OFFICIAL

$80,000 Required for Rehabilitation, Red Cross Aide Says Here.

A total of 253 homes were destroyed and 800 families were left homeless in the Charleston tornado, J. Fritz Thompson, of Athens, general Georgia field representative for the American Red Cross, said here yesterday in urging prompt subscription of the $10,000 quota set for Atlantans.

Thompson arrived in Atlanta to spur the drive being conducted by the Atlanta chapter and also to lay plans for Georgia's participation in the national roll call.

"Since the disaster, the Red Cross has provided housing facilities, food and clothing for victims and also furnished serums to prevent disease," he said.

"A total of 253 homes were destroyed, leaving 800 persons homeless, and the Red Cross has been called upon to provide for them."

"One case in particular is pitiful. All except a small boy of a family of eight were killed in the storm. This lad must have schooling, shelter and clothing, and the Red Cross is going to provide for them."

A telegram from Richard F. Allen, assistant manager of the eastern Red Cross area, yesterday reported that the "rehabilitation work is well under way, but $80,000 is needed to complete the job."

Thompson was met yesterday by General James H. Reeves, executive director of the Atlanta chapter, and Mrs. George D. Goodman, state publicity chairman.

will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and 7:30 each night through the week except Saturday.

Atlanta-Tampa 'Inaugural Flight' To Be Made by Atlantans Today

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker Will Guide Plane Along New Route; Regularly Scheduled Trips to West Florida City Will Start Monday.

The "inaugural flight" of the new Atlanta-Tallahassee-Tampa air route of Eastern Air Lines will be made today, with Captain Eddie V. Rickenbacker, World War ace and president of the airlines, at the controls and a group of Atlanta business executives as passengers.

At 7:30 o'clock this morning, the airliner will leave Candler field, to arrive three hours later in Tampa, Fla., where the passengers will be met by city officials. A stop will be made at Tallahassee to pick up Mayor J. A. Jinks, Colonel Curtis and L. Waller and B. H. Bridges.

Expansion Program.
Captain Rickenbacker, who announced his new expansion program for Eastern Air Lines in Atlanta during the early part of September, was optimistic last night over the prospects of the route, pointing out that this is the first air lane connecting Atlanta with a west coast Florida city—giving Tampa a direct route to New York city.

Officials of Eastern Air Lines last night said new routes were being planned from Houston, Texas, to San Antonio, Texas, and from Houston to Brownsville, Texas. The Civil Aeronautics Authority announced yesterday the Eastern Air Lines had asked for certificates to operate from Tallahassee, Fla., to Atlanta, via Albany, Ga.

The Atlanta group will leave Tampa at 6 o'clock (Atlanta time) Monday morning and is scheduled to arrive at Candler field at 9 o'clock.

RIVERS RECEIVES REFUGE LAND LEASE

32,284 Acres in Ware, Brantley Counties Acquired for 50 Years.

Governor Rivers yesterday received in behalf of the state a 50-year lease to the 32,284 acres of submarginal land in Ware and Brantley counties, which will be used by the Georgia Department of Natural Resources as a wild life refuge and experiment for various natural resource developments.

The tract will be known as the Georgia Coastal Flatwoods project and will be operated on a non-profit basis. It has been in development for the last three years and many thousands of dollars have been expended there by WPA.

One of the most important developments has been restoration of forests. More than 1,000,000 slash pine seedlings have been grown in the nursery and approximately 10,000 acres are devoted at the present time to protection and propagation of fish and game.

A large pasture area includes about 1,000 acres of seeded carpet grass. Recreational facilities also have been developed. A 125-acre lake has been made possible by construction of a dam and is surrounded by picnic grounds, including tables, benches, fireplaces, shelters and water.

GEORGIANS PROMOTED IN THE REGULAR ARMY

Promotion of the following Georgians, officers in the regular army, was announced yesterday by fourth corps area headquarters here:

Lieutenant Colonel Courtney H. Hodges, of Perry, to colonel; Major Charles Senay, of Atlanta, to lieutenant colonel; Captains Pierce H. Camp, of Barton; John F. Brinson, of Millen, and Eason T. Bond, of Atlanta, to majors, and First Lieutenant Frank H. Van Wagoner, of Augusta, to captain. All the officers, with the exception of Van Wagoner, a member of the medical corps, are in the infantry.

Corps area offices also announced the retirement of Technical Sergeant Otto J. Krumenauer, medical corps. Sergeant Krumenauer, in the army since 1908, has served approximately half of his enlistment in Atlanta. He holds a captaincy in the medical administrative reserve.

Editorial Gets Him Into Cold Water

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—(P)—Richard Powell, student columnist on the News-Record, University of Cincinnati publication, is satisfied at last with the force of his pen.

Wrote Powell in the News-Record:
"For years I have periodically insulted the R. O. T. C. with all the invective at my command, but nothing at all has happened. However, I will try just once more, although I have scant hope left. The R. O. T. C. and the army in general are composed of a bunch of uneducated morons."

Something finally happened: Members of the R. O. T. C. threw Powell in a pond last night.

Booker T. Washington III, grandson of the founder of the Tuskegee Institute, is now an instructor at the widely known Alabama educational institution for negroes.

ATTEMPTED COUP CRUSHED IN SIAM

Conspirators Would Have Restored Deposed King.

SINGAPORE, Oct. 8.—(Sat.—day).—(UP)—An attempted coup d'etat in Siam, supposedly in an effort to restore former King Pradjahplok to the throne now held by a 13-year-old monarch, has been crushed, it was reported today.

Several prominent politicians were said to have been arrested in the abortive plot and one minister of the government was said to have fled to Penang.

Many Siamese in Malaya have been awaiting the coup.

POLICE SEEK DRIVER OF HIT-RUN AUTO IN FINCHER DEATH

Filling Station Operator Killed by Speeding Car Near Hapeville.

Orestes C. Fincher, 40, operator of a filling station at 1376 Lee street, was killed early yesterday morning when the car of a hit-run driver struck him in front of a tourist camp on Stewart avenue, near Mount Zion church.

The body was hurled more than 100 feet. Both arms and legs were broken, and his head was crushed. Money from his pockets was scattered for a half block, and one shoe was found several yards from the body.

Woman Arrested. Patrolman W. L. Duncan and E. F. Bradford, of Fulton county police, investigated and a short time after discovery of Fincher's body lying in the road arrested a woman who identified herself as Miss Hazel Strickland, 29, of a Herring drive address.

Miss Strickland said she was with Fincher Thursday night and that she parked his car near the tourist camp. Fincher left the vehicle and was sitting on the curb, she continued, when he rose and darted across the road.

It was at that moment the speeding hit-run car struck him, his companion said. Miss Strickland was quoted by police as saying, "I was so unnerved I didn't know what to do, so I drove off." When a description of Fincher's car was broadcast over police radio, she surrendered at county police headquarters.

Miss Strickland posted $300 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The hit-run car was described as a light sedan. Police believe the car was damaged and urged automobile repairmen to be on watch for the vehicle. No inquest will be held into Fincher's death, since Miss Strickland was an eye-witness, police said last night.

Surviving are Fincher's wife; two daughters, Frances and Hazel; his mother, Mrs. N. L. Sexton, and a sister, Mrs. Ina Carter.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Brandon-Camp.

Joan Crawford Considers Lead In 'Ice Follies'

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Maybe her chilled romance has nothing to do with it, but Joan Crawford is finding it's fun to be a good skater—on any kind of ice. She is considering the leading roles in an original screen play, "Ice Follies," and has been seen frequenting a Hollywood resort of the same name in the company of Caesar Romero.

Meanwhile, Actor - Husband Franchot Tone makes a disconsolate round of film colony night spots with only men for companions. Joan recently complained that she thought her marriage should be ended because Franchot has failed to keep pace with her in their climb up the golden ladder of film success.

Joan's interest in the forthcoming "Ice Follies" was aroused accidentally when she happened to walk on the rink-studded set. She asked Producer Harry Rapf, who was starring, "No one, yet?" replied long-time friend Rapf, handing her the manuscript. Next day, Joan phoned him that she thought the part "swell."

In early historic times, three kinds of bison roamed North America, but now in the United States only the plains type of bison survives.

F. D. R. LABOR STAND LAUDED BY COUNCIL

Business Group in Accord With Statement Urging Co-operation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Secretary's Roper's business advisory council expressed "heartily accord" today with the recent White House statement urging co-operation of labor and industry.

Nearly 50 leading industrialists and financiers announced at the end of their monthly session here today:

"The members of the business advisory council are heartily in accord with the recent expression of a White House spokesman with regard to the necessity for co-operation as a basis for lasting industrial recovery."

"We wish to reiterate our view to that effect as expressed to the President on various previous occasions and our confidence in the potential benefit to all segments of the population if such a policy of co-operation is fully supported by government, labor and industry."

To give its members, most of whom are easterners, an opportunity to get acquainted with the southwest, the council voted to hold its November meeting at Houston, Texas.

MRS. JULIA JONES, 75, BURIED IN WEST VIEW

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia Trout Jones, 75, who died Thursday at her home, 305 Atlanta avenue, S. E., after an illness of several months, were held yesterday afternoon at Spring Hill, with the Rev. W. R. Sisson and the Rev. J. A. Gray officiating. Burial was in West View cemetery.

A native of Jackson county, Mrs. Jones was the former Miss Julia E. Trout. Her husband was the late William Lexington Jones Sr., Atlanta merchant, bank director and packing company official. She was a member of the Nellie Dodd Methodist church.

Watch Milligrams, Stay Sober, Is Advice of Three Yale Scientists

Trio Discloses Amount of Alcohol That Can Be Imbibed Before Concentration in Blood Stream Reaches Dividing Line of Sobriety or 'Under Influence.'

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—To keep sober, check up on your milligrams. . . .

Three Yale scientists today disclosed the quantities of alcohol in the form of whisky highballs, gin cocktails and beer that could be imbibed before alcoholic concentration in the blood stream reached a dividing line they oppose between strict sobriety and "under the influence."

One (count it) whisky highball; or one (count, that too) Martini cocktail; or 1 to 1½ quarts of beer may be taken (on an empty stomach) without the concentration of alcohol in the blood exceeding 0.5 milligram per cubic centimeter.

Reporting to the New England Journal of Medicine, Physiologists Howard W. Haggard, M. D.; Leon A. Greenberg, Ph. D., and Louis H. Cohen, B. A., said they chose that criterion because it was the value "below which all men are reasonably sober," and not the value (1.5 mg) "at which the majority are just on the verge of serious intoxication."

Between these two poles (presumably because Joe Dokes can hold his liquor with more grace than his brother, Pete) comes the big headache for police and courts in determining who is "under the influence."

If the 0.5 mg arbitrary line were adopted, the scientists hold, it "would enable the courts to put the burden where it belongs. It would rest, not on the physician, but on the motorist and the pedestrian."

And, in order to give both motorists and pedestrians an idea of how much elbow bending they could do without getting top-heavy with tell-tale milligrams, the Yalemen set up a few rounds of drinks—strictly scientifically, of course.

To five young men, ranging in weight from 150 to 175 pounds, they gave carrying quantities of whisky, gin and beer, before breakfast and after breakfast, then started scouting up milligrams.

Their conclusions: One highball, or one cocktail, or up to a quart and a half of beer may be had on an empty stomach before the danger line is reached;

After a meal, double these quantities may be taken with the same effect;

Gin, absorbed more rapidly than whisky, has a greater initial "kick"—but its effect passes off more rapidly; and

Beer, with alcoholic content equal to that of diluted whisky or gin, induces much less concentration of alcohol in the blood.

REWARD IS POSTED FOR CAPTURE OF 2

Georgia Pay Roll Holdup Suspects Wanted by U. S.

NEWNAN, Ga., Oct. 7.—The federal government, through the Post Office Department, has posted a reward of $4,000 for information leading to the capture of Floyd and Ray Bruce, suspected of having robbed the Arco Mills pay roll messenger of $7,050, near here, in April, 1937, it was learned today.

The two men are wanted for the machine-gun robbery of $25,000 from a post office messenger at Guthrie, Ky., in January. The messenger was murdered. They are charged with having committed a similar offense a few months before at Lockport, Ill.

Floyd Bruce is a Georgia native, while his brother Ray was born in Alabama.

Wants Money - Gets Divorce - Ready To Pay

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The tribulations of being a $20,000-a-year "alimony wife," with a husband who "has detectives follow me day and night," but still sends gifts of yellow roses, were described today by Peggy Fears, 30, former Ziegfeld Follies girl and wife of A. C. (Blumen) Blumenthal, New York real estate operator.

The dark-eyed Peggy said the trouble with the $20,000-a-year alimony was that she didn't get it. She's suing him for it.

Mary Is One Again. — (AP)—LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Film Actress Mary Tover, 22, who used to be little Mary Kornman, of "Our Gang" film comedies, won a divorce today from Leo Tover, cameraman.

She testified that when guests came to their home he would leave them and go into another room. "Gradually we lost all our friends," she said.

The couple was married at Yuma, Ariz., in 1934.

He's in the Money. — (AP)—LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The series of alimony proceedings against Harry Langdon, film comedian, ended today when he reported in court that he was back "in the money" and agreed to pay his former wife, Helen Walton Langdon, 25 per cent of his earnings.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION PLANS 154TH SESSION

WASHINGTON, Ga., Oct. 7.—Fishing Creek Baptist church, among the half dozen oldest churches of that denomination in Georgia, constituted in 1783, will be host for the Georgia Baptist Association, oldest such organization in the state, at its 154th annual session Tuesday and Wednesday.

The doctrinal sermon will be delivered by Rev. Charles H. Kopp, of Greensboro, at the first session. The missionary message will be brought by the Rev. John G. Griffith, of Maxey, Wednesday morning.

Dr. W. H. Faust, secretary of evangelism for the Georgia Baptist convention, will be among guest preachers.

GAG CLAMPED ON 33 RESCUED FROM SEA

Seamen Board Train for Company Inquiry Into Tragedy at New York.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Ordered not to discuss their experience in advance of a company inquiry, 33 survivors of an explosion which wrecked the tanker E. J. Bullock at sea arrived here today.

The seamen had been picked up in lifeboats by the tanker O. M. Bernuth which turned them over to a coast guard cutter off the base here and continued on her course.

The men obtained a few hours' rest at a hotel before boarding a train for New York, where the investigation will be conducted by the Standard Oil Company, owners of the 435-foot ship.

Three members of the crew of 37 were killed and one injured when a terrific explosion disabled the tanker off Dry Tortugas late yesterday. There was no opportunity to flash an SOS but sailors aboard the Bernuth saw and heard the blast and sped to the rescue. The Bullock sank about an hour later.

FLEE WITH $4,500. NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(UP)—Five bandits held up the Bush Terminal warehouse of Lever Brothers, Inc., soap makers, tonight and escaped with about $4,500.

THE DAWN OF A BETTER DAY

The germ of the agricultural future of Georgia was to be seen, for those who would look, at the Southeastern Fair during the last week. It represented only a germ, but a healthy nucleus about which riches can be built. It had grown since last year, grown almost beyond recognition. There was a new attitude, a new pride in those who had grown with that germ.

This nucleus was represented in the livestock building and in the poultry building. Sleek cattle, solid work horses and mules, stolid hogs and all varieties of chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and rabbits were on display. Their exhibitors ranged from aged farmers who had seen cotton become king and wither, to the farmers of tomorrow, the Future Farmers and the 4-H Club members. Hundreds to whom cotton is still king, but an impoverishing monarch, came to see these things that heralded the dawn of a new kingdom, a land in which riches come from the balance in life that the soil needs as much as does the human race. Last year, a keen observer would note a doubt written into the faces of those who had followed the old king. This year, there was to be seen a new light, across which was written hope and a lesson well learned.

There was a spirit there, this year, that recalled to mind a recent letter received from a convert. A convert who had become a missionary carrying the new word to the farmers of his section. It was a personal letter, and a rather unusual one. Here was an old farmer, one who had followed the rule of cotton until his land had become almost useless through erosion and hunger. Half-doubting, this man who could still learn, planted a field in kudzu, working the rest to eke out an existence until this miracle grass, to him new, could do its work. With it went terracing to hold the soil. That was only a few years ago. Today, kudzu is doing its work in certain units of his farm, while other fields that have been saved are yielding him a life of new ease and plenty. Even the kudzu-planted fields are doing their work, providing hay and grazing for livestock. Several years ago, this livestock consisted of one mule, fed with purchased feed. Today, cattle, hogs, horses and mules are fed from the land. That was only one man's story, of which he was proud. He had learned. He wanted others to learn.

Yet this soil-builder is but one type of planting that can build these riches. The press of Georgia has been carrying these messages for years. The county agents have been carrying these messages for years. Yet there was proof in this letter that only by education of the individual, by the example of his neighbors, can these messages be made fully effective.

That is why it is so greatly heartening to watch the faces of the farmers as they see tangible evidence of the riches that lie in this livestock industry that Georgians are building. It brings a hope that, in the years to come, Georgia money, hard-earned at best, will not be sent into other states to purchase the things that can be better grown in Georgia, by Georgians, for Georgians; that within a few years the state will produce enough milk, enough butter, enough meat and enough vegetables to bring a balance in the diet of even the poorest of Georgians that will mean an end to poverty of body and of mind. Then, and only then, will poverty of spirit and poverty per se be wiped out.

DOES THE STORK KNOW?

New York, Connecticut and Illinois, among other states that have enacted laws requiring blood tests of both contracting parties before a marriage license may be issued, report sharp decreases in the number of marriages since the laws went into effect.

If this means that those would-be brides and grooms who discover they bear the taint of disease within their blood streams are postponing their matrimonial venture until cures can be effected, well and good. It should help in the campaigns to stamp out such diseases as syphilis and gonorrhea, which constitute perhaps the greatest menaces to the health of the nation today.

If it means, however, that connubial unions, barred by law, are being consummated without benefit of clergy, the results can be nothing but disastrous.

For the child born of diseased parents is no less handicapped in life because he is illegitimate than the equally tainted offspring of properly wedded parents.

It would seem that in the matter of transmitting disease to offspring, it is far more important that Mister Stork be curbed, rather than Dan Cupid. The problem logically appears to belong in the realm of birth control rather than in the marriage license bureau.

Growing up and becoming President is still tops, with us at least. In Europe, growing up is considered good.

TALKING TO THE BOSSES

Something new in defense tactics against unfavorable legislation is to be found in a paid advertisement which appeared in The Constitution of Thursday last. It is a document of large public interest and worthy the attention of everyone. Those who neglected to read it carefully at the time, would find it a matter of high interest to refer to it, read it and think about it, now.

Representative Wright Patman, who occupies a Texas district seat in congress, has announced he will introduce, at the next session, a bill designed to drive chain stores out of business.

Scorning the usual practice of hiring a lobbyist, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, one of the largest of the retail grocery chains, has carried the case directly to the ultimate bosses, the people who employ Representative Patman and who likewise patronize the chain stores.

George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford are brothers who control the management of the A. & P. company. They frankly state that, in so far as their interests are concerned, it is of little moment whether they continue in business or not. During the last calendar year they paid 82 and 83 per cent, respectively, of their individual earnings to the government in the form of taxes. As neither has children, any increment in their personal fortunes would be subject, at death, to an inheritance tax amounting to approximately two-thirds of the total. Thus only about 6 cents on the dollar of earnings would be netted, not enough to warrant deep concern in the future of the business, from the personal standpoint.

They state, however, that the company employs 85,600 persons, many of whom have devoted their entire working lives to the company. The management therefore feels a definite obligation and duty to defend the interests of all these thousands who, it is declared, would be thrown out of work if the Patman proposal became law.

Another group vitally interested is the consumers. Patrons of these stores are chiefly people who have to budget their incomes with closest care. If they could no longer enjoy the advantage of lower prices for foodstuffs it would simply mean a reduction in their food buying, to the consequent detriment of their health and physical well-being.

Finally, to be considered, are the farmers who are said to find 30 per cent of the market for their products through the chain stores. The abolition of chain stores would undoubtedly prove a cruel blow both to the consuming public and to the farmers of the nation.

The A. & P. Company, the advertisement points out, has no quarrel with privately-owned stores. The savings in price of goods sold by the chain stores is chiefly the result of refusal to extend credit or to deliver purchases. Consumers who desire credit and wish their groceries delivered patronize stores extending these conveniences and pay from 10 to 25 per cent more for the privilege. Thus it is those of smaller incomes, who must economize in every way possible, who patronize the chain stores and carry their purchases home themselves.

Elimination of the chain stores from the American retail system would be a severe blow at the whole science of distribution, admitted even as it is to be the weakest and most costly link in the economic structure of the nation. It is doubtful if any other factor has done as much as the chain stores to cut distribution cost between producer and consumer.

No one will deny that chain stores have faults, oftentimes serious faults. However, enactment of any legislation which would put them out of business would be, self-evidently, an act of foolhardy prejudice, to be paid for by that large majority of American citizens who are least able to bear any increase in the cost of living.

It is to be hoped that the people themselves, who are the ultimate bosses both of the stores and of congress, will study this A. & P. advertisement and all other available data on the chain store system and then let their protest against the Patman bill be heard, authoritatively, in Washington and in the halls of any state legislatures where similar bills may be introduced.

UNDERSTANDING JUDGES

(From The Jacksonville Times-Union.)

Living in an era of sympathetic and understanding judges is proving a boon to more than one youth, who three or four decades ago might have been handled as incorrigible characters.

Reference is made here to the wisdom in the action of Justice Peter B. Hanson in handling the case of Bobby Slap, whose wanderlust for the past few years has been the puzzle of high officials of this and other governments. Impelled by a desire, which he could not properly inhibit, to go to sea, this 13-year-old lad became an habitual stow-away. At various times, he has been pulled from the secret hiding place on vessels to Europe, Savannah and the West Indies. He resides in New York.

The New York judge was quoted as making the following statement regarding Bobby: "This boy is one of the strangest I have ever met. I do not want anybody to think that the boy is a hero because of what he has done. Above all, I do not want Bobby to get this idea. But he does not deserve punishment, for he has merely followed his own dictates."

"I am going to permit him both to train for sea and also to remain at home and go to school. After he has completed his course in the marine school he will be ready to ship on some ship as a cabin boy. From there he will have to work his way up. But he must not run away again."

It is safe to bet that he won't run away.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

"SIT-DOWN" ONLY RECOURSE WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—In gauging Germany's ability to last the course in an armament race, other factors must be considered besides the Reich's natural resources. The chief of these is the organization of the German economy under the Nazi state.

The American government experts whose studies of Germany were quoted here yesterday frankly admit that they are perfectly unable to make predictions from their carefully collected statistics. They explain that the commerce of Hitler's Reich is being managed in a fashion completely foreign to ordinary experience. The normal economic laws of cause and effect have been suspended and, so far as the American experts can see, Hitler's use of all his nation's productivity to prepare for war will not be stopped except by a sit-down strike of the people.

ATTENTION, SENATOR BURKE To anyone accustomed to the self-assuredness of American businessmen, it seems incredible that a national sit-down strike has not occurred long ago in the Reich. Senator Edward R. Burke, the great defender of "individual liberties," recently returned from Berlin with the report that Hitler was greater than Bismarck, that all Germany's problems had been solved, and that businessmen were as happy as clams in a land without labor unions. If the senator had looked into the conditions under which businessmen transact their business in Germany, he might have told a different and somewhat less shocking story.

For example, the worthy senator is a great opponent of government regulation of business. He might have been interested to know that, where there were 1,000 government employees managing foreign exchange when Hitler came to power, there are now 500,000 officials of the Reich directly engaged in the supervision of every kind of business activity. He might have been interested to know also that German businessmen are subject to no less than six different governmental authorities—the state labor front, the state organization for industry, a special authority supervising technical developments, a special industrial board, a chamber of commerce to which every businessman must belong, and the economic district officers of the army general staff.

Indeed, there are all sorts of German facts which might have interested Senator Burke. There are the complaisance of the powers of the Washington bureaucracy. In Germany, there are between 700 and 1,000 ordinances of economic control published each week. He has accused the New Deal of encroaching on private enterprise. The army and all the other state authorities in Germany have absolute power to direct private enterprise, and do direct it toward preparation for war. In his attacks on the Labor Relations Board, he has repeatedly denounced "regimentation."

And in one single transaction, the exchange of German toys for 10,000 pounds of wool from abroad, no fewer than 680 government forms had to be filled out by the businessmen. It took 18 months before the last report had been filed in triplicate.

DEVALUE AND DUMP Altogether, the life of a German businessman is not a happy one. He has been forced to buy short-term government notes, which have even been discounted at the bank, to pay his taxes. He has been forced to buy short-term government notes, which have even been discounted at the bank, to pay his taxes. He has been forced to buy short-term government notes, which have even been discounted at the bank, to pay his taxes.

By now, the internal debt of Germany is admittedly 20,000,000,000 reichsmarks. Including the short-term notes and other forms of vagrant government paper, government experts believe that it is actually about twice that amount. The German reserve of gold and foreign currencies, including what was taken from Austria, amounts to no more than $150,000,000. Yet, if Germany is to keep up in the armament race, she must buy raw materials abroad.

And that is why the government experts are inclined to credit the rumors of another German devaluation. The vast mechanism of exchange on the German people, there is nothing to prevent Hitler from cutting the reichsmark from 40 cents to 20 cents. Then the exchange control mechanism can be temporarily abandoned, German goods can be dumped abroad, and the whole process of Nazi economics can be repeated. It can be seen why nothing but a national sit-down strike will end that process.

Ragweed

And Hay Fever.

A lady writes from a Florida coast town, bemoaning that, though she is an Atlantian, she is exiled from her home city because of the ragweed that grows here. She is, you see, a victim of hay fever and ragweed makes her life miserable. So she has to live on the coast, the only place, she writes, free of her weed obsession. She wants to start a campaign, eradicating the garden club here, Atlanta, to destroy all the ragweed in this city and its environs. She says if this were done hay fever victims would quickly learn to call Atlanta blessed and this city would be the mecca for all the fraternity.

So, the suggestion is made. Insofar as I know ragweed serves no useful purpose. Understand neither cattle nor insects will eat it, hence its rapid spread as the wind blows the pollen freely, far and wide.

If the garden clubs could get together on the idea and wipe out local ragweed, who knows there might be some extremely desirable citizens to acquire, from the ranks of the hay feverites.

The Whip

For Women.

Now comes a couple of explorers from the dark jungles of Africa, Congo with strange tales of pygmies and giants and of tribes with no knowledge of romance or love. But with plenty of knowledge of endurance. These tribes make a practice of fastening their marriageable women to posts and then the men of the tribe flog them across the bare bodies with vicious, long whips, inflicting the greatest pain they possibly can on the writhing victims.

The women, it is said, willingly submit for the ritual is supposed to be a test of endurance. The woman proves, in other words, that she can "take it." The worst a husband could do to her thereafter would be mild to the torture she undergoes at the whipping post.

Quite an idea. The same explorers tell of a simple system whereby the perfect imaginary servants are procured. Anyone needing a house servant simply goes to the chief of a tribe and asks for a murderer. Some convicted killer is then assigned to the servant's job, with the understanding that as long as the servant is satisfied he can stay on the job, but if dismissed from the place he'll pay with his own life for the murder he has committed.

Funny Folks

Regarding Food.

It was in a roadside dining establishment in Pennsylvania. At the adjoining table sat a middle-aged couple. They studied the menu for at least 10 minutes and argued for and against various dishes listed. Then decided, after much hesitancy, on clam chowder.

Ordered, and the woman left the table for a while.

The waitress returned and apologetically told the man the clam chowder was out. He irritably said he'd wait until his wife returned before giving another order. The wife returned and, learning the waitress was no chowder, volunteered her disappointment. Then the two gathered their hats and bags and left the place without eating at all.

And the hostess in a local eating establishment told me of a woman who ordered a plate of spaghetti and everything on her plate when the order came, down to the last gribble and the last crumb of toast, and then refused to pay because she "didn't like chicken gribbles."

Male and Female

Unemployment.

It may interest you to know that unemployment, during the present year, has been on the decline in both Germany and Czechoslovakia. But the percentage of men going back to work was greater than that of the women.

On the other hand, while unemployment among men declined in both Great Britain and France, it increased among women in those countries. And in Poland more men than ever were out of work, while more women than before had jobs.

In so far as Britain is concerned, the figures are accounted for by lessened activity in the industries which normally employ women, such as cotton textiles, wool, knitted goods, tailoring, etc. While things were booming in those heavier industries which use men almost exclusively, such as iron and steel, building, engineering, shipbuilding, mines, public works, and so forth.

Perhaps the women had better learn how to make steel, build ships or delve in mines, if they want to keep step with their brothers in industry.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

No Protests NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Now that the Dies committee has placed our Hitler-Nazi and naturalized Italian Fascists and the consuls of both nations over the same barrel where lately the Communist conspirators were getting their licks, there comes from the ranks of the Bolos and their "fellow-travelers" no such strident protests as recently decried the committee's Red hunt.

The Bolos and their "fellow-travelers" called that phase of the investigation of un-American activities a Red hunt, and I see no reason to pretend otherwise. Red hunting, like the hunting of Nazi and Fascist conspirators against the American form of government, is legitimate duty of that government. The investigation of Nazism and Fascism has followed the same general line as the investigation of Communist activities and has been, unfortunately, superficial and unskilled. The assignment is one that deserved better talent and more serious intentions on the part of the house of representatives. But as a result of the spade work of the Dies committee congress may now be encouraged to give these dangers the thorough attention that they deserve.

It may be remembered that when the Dies committee was revealing the Communist influence in the CIO, the WPA, the Workers' Alliance and the League for Peace and Democracy, and tracing the beam of inspiration from Moscow to the American Communist group, ridicule, insult and deliberate misrepresentation were the answer from the far left. Now it is the turn of the Nazi bund and the Italian conspirators to defend themselves, and it may be noted that, like the Communists, they rely on irrelevances rather than disproof.

Assumed If the Bolos had re-

A Duty tion of Communism on the ground that Communism holds an exclusive franchise for un-American activities, having pioneered the field, they would have justified their approval of the current hunt for Nazis and Fascists. But they took the position that of any such interference at all was itself an un-American activity and thereby assumed a duty to deplore with equal passion the present intrusion into the impudent treacheries of their rivals.

The Communists have been advertising their Russian product as a twentieth century Americanism, forgetting that a Nazi or Fascist, having the same moral principles, might with equal truth—which is to say none at all—and probably with more effect, describe his ism as Jefferson and Lincoln in streamline version.

The Communists have taken to themselves the word "worker," forgetting, again, that the workers of Italy and Germany are now their enemies and that in this country millions of people who work will angrily resent the implication that because they detest all alien conspiracy and reptilian methods in their own country they must be loafers and drones.

On Marxian It is too easily forgotten that the originator of Fascism, was himself once a radical socialist, given to scurrilous writing about the Italian government, the church and God Almighty, and that Fascism is but a custom job mounted on the old standard Marxian chassis.

The paint job and shape of the hood vary in Italy and Germany, compliant with local needs and lunacies, but Mussolini and his playmate are driving the same jalopy that Joseph Stalin rides in.

The method of penetration in this country is the same on both sides. The Communist party, to remove the appearance of foreign control, organized under American laws as an American group. The Fascist and Nazis, never original and always faithful in essential matters to the master model in Moscow, work through anti-American groups of naturalized conspirators under verbal guidance from official emissaries stationed in our midst.

As it was in Eger, Czechoslovakia, it is in Union City, N. J., today.

Ohio Dognapers.

Valuable dogs are going to be tattooed and registered if dog snatching continues to be as widespread and well-organized a racket as it now is in Ohio.

Conservation Commissioner Lawrence Wooded, Columbus, suggested the tattooing and registering. He said that more than 300 dogs, valued at $20,000, have been stolen in Ohio during the past two years.

The dog-snatching racket has become a problem to Ohio authorities. They claim well organized gangs of "dognapers" plan a "snatch," carefully, survey residences housing expensive pets and carry them off in automobiles specially designed to conceal stolen dogs. Underworld "fences" dispose of the dogs at good prices.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

When your mother was a college freshman, her English professor asked the question: "Should we believe all we read in the newspapers?" She still feels uncomfortable when she remembers that experience, for her answer was affirmative.

I suppose the professor felt as I do now, for it isn't a pleasant duty to shatter the illusions of the pure in heart, but somehow you must learn the sad old lesson that the gods have feet of clay, and I am a kinder teacher than experience.

I have read the magazine article which so impressed and puzzled you, and my opinion of it could scarcely be hinted at without sulphurous language.

The gist of the article was that modern girls will drink, in spite of anything that anybody can say or do, so the conscientious mother should accept the inevitable and teach them how to drink successfully. A lady, it seems, should know how to carry her liquor. It isn't etiquette to get quite a snuff full. The nice girl may get high, but not stoned. After an evening with the elite, she should be able to reach fresh air under her own power. Sliding under the table is a social blunder, to be avoided by never mixing drinks and by learning to nurse a tall one instead of drowning it at one swig.

The writer claimed to be a mother, and a mother she may be, for motherhood happens to all kinds of people; but to millions of other mothers her suggestion will seem as heartless as the theory that girl babies should be drowned.

If her premise is sound, her conclusion is logical. If girls must and will drink, parents should at least teach them to drink discreetly.

But no girl is required to drink, and the proof lies in the fact that millions don't. So the argument boils down to this, that girls may be tempted to do wrong and therefore should be trained to do it circumspetly.

If that is logical and decent, why not apply it to all wrong-doing?

Adopt the sex morals of the barnyard, but be careful not to wind up in a hoosegow or fallen girls.

You may be tempted to steal, so learn to do it so slyly that you won't be caught.

Lie and cheat when convenient, but develop enough skill to keep people fooled.

Such logic won't stand, my dear, for the premise is too rotten to support it.

No crank about liquor. I grant others the right to their opinion. But I think it a curse, and I won't teach you to do discreetly a thing that has debased and ruined others and might ruin you.

Love, DAD.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

Governor, I am afraid I am on the side of the Republic of Latvia in its argument with the sovereign state of Georgia regarding a charge of $1.94 for gas, the same having been charged his Excellency, Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from that republic in taxes.

I also wish to warn Governor E. D. Rivers and Revenue Commissioner Grady Head, that the Letts are not people with whom one may trifle. They are very patriotic, the Letts.

One of my best friends was a Lett. He was Ivan Linow. Wrestling was his profession. He stood six feet and five inches tall. His nose looked as if it had been modeled out of clay. It was a Cyrano de Bergerac of a nose.

His teeth were like horse teeth. His mouth was enormous. His hands were like peanut-cured hams. He was, as they say, a veritable giant of a man.

He was a patriotic Lett. He so described himself. He had been a Cossack. When the Letts won their freedom from Russia he became a patriotic Lett.

He was very fond of a drink. When he had had three or four he would stand up in the restaurant or cafe or room, wherever he happened to be, and beat his chest and say, "I am a patriotic Lett."

If people accepted this statement with calm, he became very angry indeed and would go about and glare at people and say, directly, "I am a patriotic Lett." Once a fellow said, "What of it?"

Linow tossed him against the wall and dislocated a shoulder.

I Forgot I forgot about Linow's uniform. This was a strange uniform reached forward to crush him. Huge hands clutched for him.

Without a single exception the citizens fled in terror down the street calling for the constabulary. The sight of the patriotic Lett, clad in his Cossack suit and his hair which was three feet tall, was too much for their nerves.

As they fled the street of this quiet southern city rang with cheers for

Quarrels over illogical boundaries and suppressed minorities in Europe recall to Editor Douglas Southall Freeman, of the Richmond News-Leader, the withdrawal of Pennsylvania-born Virginians to form West Virginia at the time of the Civil War. This suggests to Associate Editor Rothel, of the Birmingham News, that Mississippi may be making demands any day now for that part of Louisiana east of the river and that "the finger of Virginia running down between Kentucky and Tennessee" may start a row. And Editor Bruce Shelton, of the Tuscaloosa News, wonders if there will be agitation for incorporation into Alabama of the counties in the northern part of Florida. As to the latter, we believe the perfect negative has been delivered. It was delivered according to the story by a farmer in the disputed part of Florida, who was asked if he would like to be incorporated into Alabama. "Nope," he said, "I heard there's malaria up there."

We disagree with those who think that Hitler has not been stopped. We believe him genuine in adherence to the promise of Munich. We believe his sword has been sheathed—and that the reason it has been sheathed is that others at last drew their own. If the negotiations at Munich had been mere pleas for peace and discussions of surrender on the part of England and France, it might, indeed, be this would be only a truce and a still successfully sword-rattling madman would be marching again in a few months to fulfill the destiny of "Mein Kampf." But the negotiations were of a very different nature. They came with millions of French troops in the Maginot line, with England's fleet at attention, with 32,000,000 soldiers ready to face Hitler's (and Italy's) 16,000,000. They came with Hitler in receipt of definite word that if he invaded Czechoslovakia he would have to fight England, France, Russia.

Hitler will not go on, it seems to us. That is the victory accomplished.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

SPIRITUAL WORSHIP.

Sunday's lesson, the second commandment, with the comments of Jesus to the woman at the well, brings us to consider the vital theme of worship—the right sort of worship. We may well remember that man is incurably religious—that he is going to worship something, right or wrong—that false worship is definitely forbidden—and that true worship is essential to sense of happiness and satisfaction.

Darwin is reported as having said that the inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego were too low-down in the scale of intelligence to respond to religion. Thomas Bridges decided to make a test, coming back with a report of wonderful response on the part of these people to the appeal of the Gospel. The history of the race is a record of man's outreach for that which satisfieth. Alas, so many have been led into error!

Do you remember how the second commandment goes? Let me quote it: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them; for the Lord thy God is a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me and keep My commandments."

Jesus placed emphasis upon the fact that true worship depends upon reverent approach to God in spirit and in truth. He clearly teaches that worship is not dependent upon places and times, but rather upon the attitude of one's heart. Many a person truly worships as he or she goes about the daily tasks of life. God looketh upon the heart. All of which should remind us that we are to keep the windows of our souls open at all times to the presence of God.

Paid Tribute on Birthday

MISS MARTHA BERRY.

MARTHA BERRY, 72,

Mountain Schools in Honor of Founder.

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., Oct. 7.—Hundreds of congratulatory messages from all parts of America poured in today on Martha Berry, founder and director of the Berry College and Schools, as the institution celebrated with a half holiday her 72d birthday.

"Mountain Day," as Miss Berry's birthday is called at Berry schools, is celebrated annually with a picnic party of students and staff at the Boys' school at the foot of Mount Berry, with a special reception to the high school and college seniors by Miss Berry at the House of Dreams, her garden home atop Mount Berry.

The program included old-fashioned square dances, a baseball game between the college and high school teams, a band concert, a picnic supper, a grand march of the student body reviewed by Miss Berry, and singing of the schools' Alma Mater. To close the day's program, a motion picture was shown in the Henry Ford auditorium.

UNIFORM TAX LAWS

Mutual Problems.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Tobacco tax administrators from 21 states in the annual session of the national tobacco tax conference here yesterday discussed means of stamping out practices for evading state cigarette taxes. Sums evaded, they said, ran into high figures.

As one means, M. J. Connors, Oklahoma commissioner, suggested that all states adopt uniform tobacco taxing laws. He recommended that wholesalers be required to make reports to the state on all of their sales.

Other speakers advocated passage by congress of the Tarr bill which would allow outside inspection of parcel post packages. T. Grady head, Georgia commissioner of revenue, said taxpayers probably would not attempt evasion of tobacco taxes if they "can see and understand the benefits of such payments and feel that the law is uniformly applied."

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Miss Vally Wieselthier, Viennese sculptress whose career as instructor at Louisiana State University, came to an abrupt stop, sat up in bed today with her dog Niki, a cigarette, coffee, toast and some eggs and said the dean of the college of arts and sciences told her that if she didn't get off the campus he'd have the police put her off.

As she sat in bed, munching eggs, Miss Wieselthier made it plain she didn't hold the 8,000 students of the university in high regard. "They sit there," she said, meaning the students, "and expect the teacher to pump art and education into them the way you'd pump medicine down the throat of a sick horse."

Undaunted by a jury which declared its own mistrial in a case before his court Friday, R. T. Dutton, justice of the peace in the Buckhead district, Fulton county, last night announced the case will be placed before another jury November 3, unless disposed of in the meantime.

The precedent set by the jury and the powers it assumed in declaring the mistrial after failing to agree flabbergasted Judge Dutton, but he submitted gracefully.

Juries usually reach a verdict if possible. If they cannot, the court declares a mistrial. The jury in question was composed of four members. Two leaned to each litigant in a $25 civil suit. They

The suit was to recover the cost of new tires for an old automobile.

What Stocks Did.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Following is the tabulation of stock transactions on the New York Stock Exchange:

Table with 2 columns: Stock Name, Price. Includes various stock indices and individual stocks.

The stock market encountered a little rougher going today as traders cashed in profits on the lengthy upswing, but selected issues managed to enter new high territory for the past year with gains running to a point or so.

The list was still under the influence of more optimistic business indications and selling, which was fairly insistent at times, was well absorbed in most cases.

The foreign situation generally had dropped into the background as a market consideration.

Rails, aircrafts and specialties were in the forefront throughout. Steels were given a run after noon and coppers firmed at the last.

There was a large turnover of low-priced issues, however, and Radio Corporation at relatively substantial advances. Best prices were reduced at the finish.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 3.4 points at 514.4, a new top since October 9, 1937.

Curbs quotations were mixed. Gains of fractions to 3 points were shown by Lake Shore, Detroit Steel Products, Newmont and United Wall Paper.

Turnover to a point or more included Sherwin-Williams, Aluminum Company, American Gas & Electric and Creole Petroleum.

Turnover of 166,000 shares compared with 331,000 Thursday.

Bank Clearings

Volume of bank clearings turned sharply higher this week, aided by heavy banking transactions, usually important of the first-of-the-month period.

The first-of-the-month period, the up-lift, however, failed to carry the current total for all cities to the level of the corresponding 1937 week, even with New York showed a drop of 22 ending cities.

Total clearings for the week ended Wednesday, October 5, amounted to $9,823,909,000, a drop of 3.3 per cent compared with the corresponding week of 1937.

Clearings at New York, however, were up 1.6 per cent above those of last year, the corresponding totals being $3,841,114,000 and $3,792,278,000.

Outside of New York was $2,982,855,000, compared with $2,342,440,000 a year ago, giving a decrease of 25.2 per cent.

Declines from last year were general at outside cities, which were: Pittsburgh, 27.7 per cent; Portland, Ore., 16.0 per cent; Minneapolis, 15.3 per cent; Detroit, 14.2 per cent; Cincinnati, 13.7 per cent; Seattle, 12.9 per cent; Omaha, 11.8 per cent; Philadelphia, 11.1 per cent.

Bank clearings at leading cities, compared with those of 1937, are given here, also, the decline in percentage clearings for the months of July, August and September:

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling 8.92.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(P) The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was unchanged at 8.51 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(P) Cotton moved irregularly today when trade and foreign buying encountered larger hedge selling.

December, which had advanced from 8.26 to 8.34, closed at 8.29 with final prices 2 points net higher to 5 points lower.

The market opened 4 points higher to 1 point lower with disappointing Liverpool cables offset by trade price fixing against larger textile sales yesterday.

Foreign buying absorbed early hedge selling in distant markets, and prices advanced early above recent resistance levels based on 8.30 for December contracts.

Selling in the distant months, under hedging after the foreign demand had let up. Other liquidation appeared to be the cause.

Quiet trading reflected a disposition to await tomorrow's crop estimate.

Exports, 27,038, making 729,616 so far this season; port receipts, 66,708; United States port stocks, 3,006,785.

COTTON ENDS STEADY IN NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(P) Cotton prices turned irregular following moderate early gains here today and the market closed steady, 4 points net higher to 2 lower.

Port receipts, 66,626; for week 196,319; for season 1,510,732. Exports, 27,038; for week 104,854; for season 753,889. Port stocks 3,006,785.

Stock on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 77,496; last year 157,534. Spot sales at southern markets 47,003; last year 61,501.

SPECULATIVE BONDS RECORD NEW HIGHS

Gains of 2 Points Are Numerous as Buying Centers in Rail Groups.

Daily Bond Averages.

(Copyright, 1938, Standard Statistics Co.)

Table with 2 columns: Bond Name, Price. Includes various speculative bonds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(P) Loans of speculative rating continued in high favor with buyers today's bond market.

Prices generally were marked to new high levels for the "peace" recovery which started last week with the calling of the Munich four-power conference.

Anticipation of improvement in earnings of key industries over the next few months was expressed in a fairly broad demand for corporate loans showing substantial yields.

A considerable part of this buying was concentrated in the rail group, where gains of fractions to around 2 points were numerous.

Southern Railway was a leader, the 6-1/2 pushing up 5 1/2-2 points to 70-1/2; 6s up 3-3/4 at 52-3/4. Trading circles heard the road experienced a good gain in gross revenues in September.

United States government extended the week's gains by 1-3/2 at 11-3/2. Point. Foreign loans were mixed though generally steady. Czech 8s of '51 fell 4-3/8 points on small transactions.

Dealings totaled $8,723,500 against $11,530,200 yesterday.

Weather Outlook For Cotton States.

North Carolina and South Carolina: Fair and cool Saturday; Sunday fair with rising temperatures.

Georgia: Fair Saturday and Sunday; slowly rising temperatures.

Florida: Generally fair Saturday and Sunday; except showers probable in southeast coast; somewhat warmer in north portion.

Louisiana: Fair to partly cloudy and continued warm Saturday and Sunday.

Mississippi, Alabama and Extreme Northwest Florida: Fair, little temperature change Saturday and Sunday.

Arkansas: Fair Saturday; Sunday partly cloudy.

Oklahoma: Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday.

East Texas: Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday; except scattered showers in lower Rio Grande valley. Continued warm.

West Texas: Partly cloudy, probably scattered thundershowers in southwest portion Saturday and Sunday.

Money Market.

NEW YORK. The British pound sterling closed 1 1/2 cents down, 146 1/2, after a day of steady gains.

The French franc, 47 1/2, was 1/2 cent higher, 47 1/2, after a day of steady gains.

Was Employee of Southern Railway System for 46 Years.

W. Jack Rutledge, 70, resident of Atlanta for almost half a century and car repairman for the Southern Railway System until he retired a year ago, died yesterday morning at his home, 722 Windsor street, S. W. He had been ill only a week.

A native of Gwinnett county, Mr. Rutledge started working for the railroad shortly after moving to Atlanta when he was a young man. He had been employed continuously for 46 years when he retired.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. M. A. Fontaine; a grandson, R. T. Fontaine, all of Atlanta; a sister, Mrs. E. Miller, of East Point, and two brothers, S. C. and H. A. Rutledge, both of Windsor, Ga.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock, eastern standard time, this afternoon in the Midway Methodist church, Chas. G. and S. W. W. will be in the churchyard, under direction of J. Austin Dillon.

DR. COLLINS GIVEN MODERATOR'S POST

Fairburn Baptist Association Ends 2-Day Session.

FAIRBURN, Ga., Oct. 7.—The Fairburn Baptist Association, meeting at the Forest Park Baptist church yesterday and today, elected Dr. D. Collins, State superintendent of schools, as moderator; Dr. L. E. Roberts, former moderator of the Atlanta Baptist Association, and now pastor at Fairburn, as vice chairman; the Rev. J. Wilbur Sycamore, of East Point, as clerk, and Alvin E. Shaw as treasurer.

The Fairburn association included 29 churches in Fayette, Clayton and Fulton counties.

The next session of the association will be held at Enon Baptist church, which is in old Campbell county or south Fulton, next October.

Mountain View church, near Hapeville, is the youngest church in the Fairburn association, having been organized in September and affiliated with the association during the meeting this week.

Among those who took part in the program during the two-day session were the Rev. Tombs McGaughey, former moderator of College Park; Dr. W. H. Faust, state secretary of evangelism; Atlanta; Dr. B. D. Ragdale, of Mercer University, Macon; Dr. J. F. Marchant, pastor of the Forest Park church; the Rev. L. E. Evans, of College Park; and Mrs. H. C. Cook, superintendent of women's missionary work of the churches of the association.

CONGRESS BLAMED IN RAIL DISPUTE

Official Says Solons Refused To Give Relief.

Seaman Pawns Teeth for Drinks --But Will Get Them Back Intact

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A Boston seaman who pawned his false teeth in New Orleans a month ago for two highballs and then missed them—the teeth, not the highballs—will get them back intact.

Paul L. Thibodeaux, general delivery manager for the Western Union Telegraph Company, Inc., in this city, said he received the following telegram from Boston this morning:

"While in drydock at New Orleans I hooked them for 30 cents to a bartender named Polack Whitey. If you could locate them and send them back to me I would greatly appreciate it."

Mr. Thibodeaux said he called upon Alvin Duncan, 26-year-old employee of the company, to find the teeth and Mr. Whitey. In one hour's time Duncan found both of them.

"Yes," Thibodeaux quoted Mr. Whitey as saying, "A seaman came in, had two highballs worth 30 cents and couldn't pay for them. He offered me his teeth. I took them."

Duncan paid Mr. Whitey the 30 cents due on the teeth, sent them special delivery to Boston, and kept the $4.70 in change.

Inmates of N. Y. Home for the Aged Eye 'New' Fashions Doubtfully

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Inmates of New York's Home for the Aged, where the same fashions in clothing have prevailed for a century, speculated doubtfully today on the plan to outfit them in new-fangled, up-to-date attire.

Said Frank Torney, 79: "I won't wear a necktie, because I don't believe in them."

Mrs. Louise Moore: "It's all right so long as they don't make me wear one of them new hats with your nose that I see pictures of."

Bridget Hannigan: "So long as they don't make me dress like a man the way a lot of women did back about wartime, I'm in favor."

There will be no precariously perched bonnets nor mannish dresses for the women, but the coarse Mother Hubbards which have been their uniform will be thrown away. Instead, they will have flowery percales and low-cut shoes.

Gone for the men will be ill-fitting cotton suits and shapeless trousers. Now it is to be shrink-proof trousers and jackets and modern hats.

GEORGIA NEWS BRIEFS

4-H EXHIBIT. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 7.—Every district in the county is to be represented in Polk county's annual exhibit by 4-H Club women and girls, which opened today and will continue tomorrow, Miss Zelia Phillips, home demonstration agent, has announced.

RUN-OVER IN GREENE. GREENSBORO, Ga., Oct. 7.—B. W. Boyd, of Union Point, this week won nomination as Greene county's member of the Georgia general assembly, defeating Lawrence Brown, of Greensboro, by 50 votes in a run-over primary.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETINGS. The Georgia Sunday School Association will sponsor interdenominational Sunday school conventions Sunday at Bethany church in Fayette county and at Sweet Water Baptist church in Dawson county.

CONTRACTS ARE LET. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 7.—Contract for construction of a combined administration building and dormitory at the Ethel Harp Home and for erection of a modern home for Miss Ethel Harp, head of the school, has been awarded to a LaGrange company. The low bid was $60,000. A separate contract for plumbing and heating equipment was awarded to an Atlanta company, whose bid was $9,100.

INJURED IN AUTO WRECK. JONESBORO, Ga., Oct. 7.—W. A. Eubanks, power company repairman, was seriously injured today when an automobile in which he was riding left the highway about a mile and a half south of here on Route 41 and overturned on a fill. He was taken to an Atlanta hospital.

HONORED AT L. S. U. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 7.—Tus Butler, of Griffin, former city editor of the Cowartown Standard and now a graduate student Louisiana State University, has been elected vice president of the graduate school of that institution.

TWO HURT IN CRASH. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 7.—A. Nipper, of Cedartown, and John E. Smith, of Jacksonville, Ala., received minor injuries in a truck-trailer accident near Piedmont, Ala., last night. Both were brought to a Cedartown hospital for treatment.

WASHINGTOWN, Ga., Oct. 7.—By a margin of 14 votes, Ralph A. McLendon, of Tignall, defeated John W. Callaway, incumbent, of Washington, for the chairmanship of the county board of commissioners in a run-over primary this week. Chairman Callaway long held this office, was a Wilkes county sheriff, and has been in public office about 40 years.

DRUG CHARGES LAID TO 14 MEN, WOMEN

Indictment of Columbus Group Returned in U. S. Court in Albany.

ALBANY, Ga., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The federal grand jury, in session at the middle district court here, today indicted 14 Columbus men and women for selling narcotics, it was announced by Assistant United States District Attorney John Cowart.

Indicted include Goldy Barber, Jeannette Chanka, Justina Fain, Lula May Faircloth, Gladys Marie Wynn, Essie Phelps and Alma Adie Nix.

Men indicted include James C. Cumby, Frank Henry Huckleby, Charles Dodge Hill, Willie Cleveland Anglin, John Allen Nix, George Tannet, alias Smitty Smith, and Charles Thomas Thornton.

An additional charge of conspiracy was lodged against Jeannette Chanka and Gladys Marie Wynn, the district attorney said. All indictments were obtained on information presented to the jury by Mr. Cowart.

The assistant district attorney said that the seven women would be taken to Macon next week to plead guilty and receive sentences, while the men will be tried in Columbus October 16.

EX-ARMY OFFICER DIES. CLEARWATER, Fla., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Charles P. Edwards, 60, retired surgeon and a retired member of the army medical corps, died at a Clearwater hospital early today after a brief illness.

Gov., Mrs. Rivers Give Reception

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Georgia School of Technology, Governor and Mrs. Rivers were hosts at a reception yesterday afternoon at the executive mansion in Ansley Park. The occasion assembled prominent guests from distant points including foreign countries, who are here for the anniversary celebration. Receiving with Governor and Mrs. Rivers were Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, and Mrs. Brittain and Dean and Mrs. Vernon Skiles. Georgia Tech's colors, gold and white, were carried out in the decorations of the reception rooms at the mansion. Pouring tea from silver services were Mrs. Stan Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Brittain, and Miss Jerry Rivers, daughter of Governor and Mrs. Rivers.

Julia L. Hunt, from 4 to 6 o'clock Sunday at her home, 390 N. Highland avenue, N. E., Apartment 9.

Mrs. Ethridge To Wed at Home This Morning

Enlisting the interest of hosts of friends is the marriage of Mrs. Nena Turner Etheridge and Judge Vivian L. Stanley, which takes place this morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Paul Turner, in McDonough. The ceremony will be attended by members of the betrothed pair's immediate families and the bride-elect's son, Frank S. Etheridge II will give her in marriage. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will perform the ceremony, after which Mrs. Turner will be hostess at an informal breakfast.

For the occasion Mrs. Etheridge will wear a stunning ensemble fashioned of brown crepe embroidered in gold threads. Her hat of brown velvet, will be trimmed with coral-colored ostrich tips. Judge Stanley and his bride will leave in the early afternoon for a trip to Hot Springs, Ark. They will return to Atlanta for residence on November 1.

Among out-of-town members of the family attending the ceremony will be Mrs. John S. Adams, of Dublin, Ga., and F. S. Etheridge, of Columbus, Ga. Mrs. Etheridge is the daughter of Mrs. Paul Turner and the late Judge Turner, whose families have been prominently identified with this state for several generations. The bride-elect is a popular figure in Atlanta's social and musical circles. She possesses a beautiful soprano voice and for several years she was a member of the First Methodist church choir.

As chairman of State Prison and Parole Commission, Judge Stanley is numbered among Georgia's prominent political figures.

Mrs. Carter Honors Prominent Visitor.

Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter entertained a group of close friends last evening at her home on Piedmont avenue, honoring her guest, Mrs. Carolyn Coggins, of New York, a member of the staff of "Books" on The New York Herald-Tribune.

Mrs. Carter was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. George P. Hinman, and her sisters, Misses Dorothy and Cara Hinman. Mrs. Legare Davis and Mrs. Tarleton Collier poured coffee.

A special guest was Miss Evelyn Hanna, of Thomaston, Ga., author of "Blackberry Winter," a recently released best-seller, and who also is visiting the hostess.

Several distinguished authors, including Mrs. John Marsh, Mrs. Wilkie Moody, Harry Lee, Gilbert Maxwell, Thomas Ripley and Dr. Anderson M. Scruggs and a number of members of Atlanta's literary circle were invited to meet the honor guest.

Dr. and Mrs. Elkin To Entertain Group of Louisville, Ky., Guests

Hosts of prominent visitors continue to arrive in the city, attracted by the football game to be played by Georgia Tech and Notre Dame at Grant field this afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. Dan Elkin will have as their guests for the week end at their home on Penn avenue a group of attractive guests from Louisville, Ky., including Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Curran, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. O'Brien, and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Robertson. The sextet will arrive by train today and will attend the gridiron classic this afternoon. In addition they will be entertained at a round of small, informal affairs during their visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Elkin returned Thursday from Lancaster, Ky., where they spent the past week at their farm.

Among the popular young belles who will attend the game are Misses Fannie and Virginia Battey, of Augusta, who will spend the week end with Mrs. Frank McGaughey at her home on Habersham road. This evening the Misses Battey will be attractive figures attending the final dance in the series of brilliant events given in celebration of Tech's 50th anniversary. The dance will be held at the Tech armory.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Abreu have arrived from their beach home at Sea Island and will have as their guests for the week end at their home on Peachtree road, George Boll and Irving Harnid, both of Sea Island, who will be among the throng of football enthusiasts. Mr. and Mrs. Abreu will entertain at luncheon at the Capital City Club today in compliment to their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Strupper will have as their guest at their home on Pace's Ferry road their brother, Byron C. Crawford, of Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Crawford will be central figure at the luncheon at which Mr. and Mrs. Strupper will be hosts today at the Capital City Club.

Chapman Hyams, of New Orleans, will be the guest for the week end of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Robinson Jr. at their home on Tuxedo road, and will be among the sports lovers attending the football game.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Carpenter, of Shreveport, La., will arrive late today to be the guests for the week end of their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carpenter, at their home on Peachtree Battle avenue. These visitors are en route home from the east, where they visited Mrs. Guy Carpenter Sr. at her home in Wilton, Conn., and their niece, Mrs. C. W. Webster, in Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carpenter will celebrate their 14th wedding anniversary today by assembling a small group of guests at luncheon at the Capital City Club preceding the football game. Mrs. Carpenter is the former Miss Mildred Fraser, daughter of the late Mr. Wallace Fraser and the late Mr.

Athletic Club Plans Series of Affairs.

Social affairs planned for members of the Atlanta Athletic Club and their visitors include a cocktail party to be held this afternoon from 5 to 7:15 o'clock after the Tech-Notre Dame football game. This evening a dinner-dance will be given at East Lake Country Club.

Other affairs planned for the month by the club is the dinner-dance at East Lake October 15, the after-football-game cocktail party and dinner-dance at the city club October 22, and the special Halloween dinner-dance October 29 at East Lake Club.

Training Course.

An introductory training course to Girl Scouting will be conducted on Monday and Wednesday at the First Methodist church from 10 to 12 o'clock.

New leaders, members of committees and council members who have had no training courses are invited to attend as well as any one interested in girl scouting.

The course will give a splendid picture of the beginning and history of the organization and its place in the group world.

All the different places a volunteer may fill will be brought out in this course. The course will be under the leadership of Miss Eleanor Bonham, the Atlanta Girl Scout director.

MY DAY College in Tennessee Answers Youth Problem

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—In the brief time I spent in Nashville, Tenn., yesterday, one visit stands out in my mind. Secretary Hull had asked me to see Mr. Floyd Bralliar and when I met him I was immediately struck by the fine earnestness of his face. He came to tell me of the fine earnestness of his face. He came to tell me of the fine earnestness of his face.

I was told of an educational institution, Madison College, which had received contributions for its original investment amounting to 430 acres of land outside the city of Nashville. Thereafter, the college was run in a unique way. The faculty earned its own living on the side while making teaching a full-time job. Mr. Bralliar and his wife lived on $15 a month those first years, now they live with greater comfort on $35 a month.

The students earn their living while making studying a full-time job. The buildings were put up with student labor, directed by the faculty. They built their own houses. No student receives a degree until he or she has acquired skills in any line which seems to fit his or her capacity. The college built a hospital and operates it for its own profit, and it is in good standing with the medical profession and trains the college girls as nurses.

Madison College products are selling in a moderate and healthy way. Sales are increasing gradually but not sensationally, because they cannot afford advertising on a national basis. Thirty-five similar institutions have started up in various places under the leadership of graduates.

Now they suddenly find themselves up against a new difficulty. A magazine wrote an article about their work and they are flooded with applications for entrance. The hunger of young America for a chance to enter the field of life better equipped is apparent in these applications, for here is a chance for people who have no money to acquire a college degree.

Mr. Bralliar says they can probably use a hundred more students profitably in their industries, but they have no buildings in which to house them. They have the labor, but materials must be paid for in cash. Fourteen thousand dollars would meet their needs. Mr. Bralliar, looking a little weary, told me how much the other educational institutions in Nashville had helped them when they built their library, and how co-operative they always were in giving Madison College all the help they could, but now, in the next few months, he must raise $14,000 if he is to meet the demands already made by young people throughout the country.

He mentioned that two young North Dakota girls whose name is Roosevelt, and who claim consanguinity with President Theodore Roosevelt, are among his students. He added that he had made a survey of 1,000 of his graduates and not one among them had been forced to accept help either from the government or private agencies during these difficult years.

I wonder if this story will not make some people want to investigate and find out if here is a real answer to some of our youth problems which deserve our support.

If You Want to Look Young Keep Slim in the Middle

By Ida Jean Kain.

You don't look middle-aged until you lose your figure in the middle, but that is the place you are most likely to lose it. The whole trouble is that the change is gradual that you ignore it as long as you can. But one fine day, say about your thirty-sixth year, you wake up to the fact that you look years older than you feel. You wonder if ever again you can have a slim, young figure.

Well, you can... but it takes unrelenting exercise—20 minutes if exercise a day to put those muscles back into condition, and then from 10 minutes a day to keep your slim lines.

When the four pairs of abdominal muscles are kept in perfect one, the tummy is as flat as any fashion designer could expect it to be. Here are two of the best exercises I know for conditioning your muscles to hold a straight front line:

Position: Lying flat on the back, knees flexed and feet flat on the floor.

Movement: Take a deep breath and jerk the knees upward. At the same time pull the tummy up and in to touch the small of the back to the floor. Holding this position, expel all the air from the lungs. Continue to contract the muscles for a second and relax gradually and repeat.

The foregoing exercise seems very simple, but it puts two very powerful forces to work for your figure. In the first place, emptying the lungs of air tends to create a vacuum and the internal organs naturally move up to correct position. Also, in this horizontal position, the muscles are working in a straight line.

Both exercises are performed in a horizontal position so that no strain is connected with them. This is the best of all positions for strengthening the abdominal muscles, and you will be delighted with the results of just one week of exercise of this type.

Easily-Made "Bow" Dress—Lillian Mae

Here's well-bred dignity and grace... a "bow" dress to give you a thinner, smarter, years-younger figure! It's one of Lillian Mae's latest creations—with very few seams to sew, and a step-instructor sheet that makes it a delight to use a sewing machine. Whether in a novelty crepe, a soft synthetic or printed silk, it's a style to don right now and wear on every gala occasion right through Christmas. Don't miss the charm of the extra fullness placed where it will do most good in the bodice. And note that the diaphragm seems more slender because of the slightly raised waistline. Indeed, the skirt with its single pleat is delightfully slim without sacrificing ease for walking or sitting.

Pattern 4964 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 3/4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Two bidding situations in contract bridge are often confused by average players:

(1) North (D) 1 Spade South 4 Spades
(2) North (D) 1 Heart South 1 Spade 4 Spades

Many players still persist in the delusion that the four-spade bid in both instances is a "game-closing" bid, based largely on distribution and warning partner the risk is his, if he goes on.

In the first example, South's raise to game is a shut-out raise based on strong trump support, but not much else. In the second example the four-spade raise has an entirely different meaning, because North opened the bidding. North can see a play for game even though South's spade takeout is based on minimum strength as:

S—Q J 7 5
H—7 5 3
D—K 8 6
C—5 4 3

POWERFUL HAND.

North would have responded three spades if he merely wanted to urge South to bid again. It is the purest logic that the four-spade jump by North must be based on powerful hand. In the Culbertson system the raise of a response all the way to game is in no sense game-closing or a pre-emptive raise. On the contrary, it shows a powerful hand.

YESTERDAY'S PROBLEM.

Answer: Trump squeeze.
(a) South cashes the club jack, North discarding a small spade. South leads the club 2. North ruffing with the heart ace. East discards a spade.

North leads a small spade and South ruffs with the heart queen. South leads the diamond ace and South's diamond 3 is ruffed by North's heart 10. North leads the heart king, picks up East's jack. North's last spade is good.

(b) If at the second lead, East discards a diamond instead of a spade, North leads a diamond to South's ace and South leads a diamond for North to ruff with the heart king. A trump lead by North is won by South's queen and all of South's cards are good. Till tomorrow...

Avoid Errors In Your Speech

"Oh! This would happen," thinks Madge frantically in the middle of a word. Should she pronounce it exQUisite or EXquisite? Madge would like to make a hit with these attractive men (they're the kind who know EXquisite is right). But how can she when she makes these wild stab at words? "Yes, the club is run by a click—but we've had an incomPARABLE Program, don't you think?"

Of course he breaks amuse people who correctly say klee for clique, inCOMparable, PROGRAM with an "a" instead of "u" sound. Madge, detecting their glances, thinks what the use of trying with people better bred and educated than herself—who "naturally" talk correctly.

Nonsense! Everybody has to learn the trickier words—and you can quickly check up on them. "Do you shy away from 'Frenchy' words for clothes and food? You wonder if you're wrong to speak of a modiste as a MOD-ist or lingerie as lonjerAY, to order the ta-ble-de-HOTE dinner? With a very little practice you could speak confidently and correctly of a moDEEST, lanZaREE, the tah-bl-DOTE dinner.

And why hold back when others talk of events of the day—the premiere of a new show, the Sudeten problem, the dictators' pact?

You, too, can be at ease when you know how to avoid such boners as preMEER, SuDETEN, DIC-tators. You sound cultured and charming as you say correctly pre-MYAIR, SuDAYten, dicTAY-tors.

Don't let uncertainty about pronunciation handicap you. Our 40-page booklet, "Words Most Often Mispronounced," quickly sets you right, gives you the clear correct pronunciation admired by people you want to know.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Hollywood "Snoop" Brings News From the Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—"Boy Meets Girl"—Three years late getting famous stage play to screen... due to retirement of Marion Davies, for whom it was originally bought... Joan Blondell then refused to play it and so Warner let it rest on shelf until heroine prospect turned up in person of Marie Wilson... Screen story, however, subordinates her part to Jimmy Cagney and Pat O'Brien as crazy writing team can dominate proceedings... Sam Spewack, who with wife, Bella, wrote "Boy Meets Girl," was famous newspaper correspondent. She was newspaperwoman, too.

Gathered material for play first-hand as scenarists in various studios... It opened in New York November 27, 1935, ran for 233 performances... Warners bought it shortly after for $10,000... Spewacks hired to write screen play... Entire Warner Studio used as setting and name changed to Royal Studios.

This is Cagney's first film for Warners in two years... Last was "Ceiling Zero"... After that came court fight, Cagney victory and affiliation with small independent outfit... Mutual friends worked out reconciliation and all hands now apparently happy... Marie Wilson, who reveals in being known as "Dumbest Blonde in Hollywood," won part of Susie, waitress, because fans really wanted her... Her fan clubs, outnumbering those of any other actress, bombarded studio with letters and telegrams until Jack Warner broke down and, in self-defense, gave her part of Susie. She started her campaign for role when studio bought play... By time picture went into production, she knew every line of dialogue in script... Worked in Brown Derby by three days to learn how to wait table.

Youth Argues On Question Of Hair

By Caroline Chatfield.

As far as the memory of woman's hair, the bitterest battleground of mother-versus-daughter has been daughter's hair. Immemorably mother has recognized her right to get in it; but she has never recognized daughter's right to get in her own hair; in fact she's been slow to recognize that daughter has any hair of her own. Here it is that daughter begins her fight for independence, not with the sword but with sharp words, curling implements and scissors.

Can any woman recall her youth without recalling innumerable arguments she had with her mother on the question of whether hair should be long or short, up or down, curled or straight, banged or pompadoured? Many years ago I saw a blue-eyed curly-haired playmate snip off a few front strands to make some bangs and just because I agreed with her that it was her hair which she had a perfect right to cut, I found myself in the embarrassing position of sharing punishment for "the rape of the lock." Worse than the punishment was having to witness the mother's tearful grief at the sight of her short-lamb and the shock at the thought that her darling dared lay hands on what wasn't hers.

Verily history repeats itself: in the morning's mail there's a letter from a young miss in her early teens, bemoaning her mother's lack of sympathy and understanding. "Why," she says, "I cut myself some bangs and when mother saw them she told father and they raised such a row you would have thought I had committed a crime. Father would never have sent the bangs if she hadn't told him about them; and besides who's hair is it anyhow?"

Whose hair is it, anyhow? There's the crux of the matter. Mother thinks it's hers because daughter belongs to her; but when she tries to tell daughter that daughter's hair belongs to mother, daughter begins to suspect that there are some subjects about which mother doesn't know best—nor even know anything.

Why hair should be the subject that makes the crack that widens into the gulf that separates the generation of mothers from the generation of their daughters is a mystery, but all signs point to the fact that it is. Long before mother and daughter disagree on clothes, companions and social customs they've gone a round or two on hair. Long before they part company on the question of boy friends, notes and letters, amusements they've been splitting hairs, pulling hair and getting in another's hair on the subject of whose hair it is, anyhow.

Asking me, I'll say it belongs to the girl.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Of Interest to Women

Q. Do adults contract mumps? Can my little girl give the disease to her father who never has had mumps?

A. Yes, to both questions, according to the United States Public Health Service. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for general information about this disease.

Q. What part of the expenses of a church wedding should be borne by the parents of the bride?

A. They pay for the invitations, trousseau, decoration of the church and house, music at the church, autos for bridal party from house to the church and back, the wedding reception, bride's present to her bridesmaids, and a wedding present to the couple.

Q. Should I tell my 10-year-old son and 12-year-old daughter that there will be a new baby? They recently saw their pet cat give birth to kittens and have been very inquisitive about birth ever since.

A. They should be told of the new baby and that will be a good opportunity to explain conception and birth to them. Our Service Bureau at Washington has an excellent booklet on the subject. Ask for Sex Education Booklet and enclose 10 cents, with your name and address.

Q. What causes sourness in home-made bread?

A. Abnormal fermentation, due to the growth of lactic acid bacteria in the dough for too long a period before baking. To prevent this the rising of the dough must be stopped at the right point.

Q. From which side of a person should dishes be served and removed?

A. All service is at the left of the person served, and dishes may be removed from the right or left, whichever is more convenient.

Q. Should the skin of a newborn baby be washed immediately with soap and water?

A. It should first be rubbed with olive oil. The doctor will tell you whether or not a soap and water bath may safely be given immediately after the baby has been rubbed with oil. Vaseline or a light mineral oil may be used instead of olive oil.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose 2-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor, Washington Bureau, Atlanta Constitution, 1015 15th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily. Don't telephone; write as directed.

A Change of Posture Relieves Muscle Strain

By Dr. William Brady.

Children and adolescents, as well as their parents, often offer as an explanation or excuse for bad posture the plea that it is so tiring to maintain good posture.

One of the freak notions of good posture formerly entertained even by physicians and physical directors or physical educators, and still cherished by some of them, is that good posture requires that one hold the belly in and flat. (Old timers generally speak of it as the "abdomen" but the abdomen is a cavity and it doesn't budge in or out or up or down unless the whole body goes right along with it. Still quainter ginks pronounce it abdomen—one instance of diffidence about the do in Yankee land. Call it ab-do-men and you'll never have to blush about it.)

Insistence on this freak notion of holding in or drawing up the belly adds unnecessarily to the onus of good posture. In practice it is far better to ignore the belly altogether. If the movable parts of the body are properly disposed or carried the belly will take care of itself. Never mind where your belly is. Consider rather where your chin, the crown of your head and your great toe joints are.

A simple experiment shows how much more fatiguing poor posture is than good posture. Try standing with knees slightly bent in a crouch. You tire far more quickly than you do from standing with the knees straight.

In the graceful, normal erect posture the body framework is supported mainly by the bones. Not in the exaggerated toy soldier or musical comedy buller attitude, which upsets balance as far in one way as the careless slump or lazy slouch does in the other.

Without implying that anybody is a monkey, it is interesting to note that animals have only one curve, convex or rounded back, in the whole spinal column. So have human infants. The concave or forward curve in the lumbar or loin region develops to establish stability in the erect posture; it is more firmly stamped upon the spine of the European than upon the spine of the savage and is regarded by anthropologists as a sign of advance in the scale of evolution.

The highly trained athlete or the thoroughly drilled soldier does not stand erect when at ease. It is normal and natural to change from one posture to another when standing for a long time, to change the strain from one set of muscles to another. The child or youth who cannot assume an erect posture for even a few minutes, but shifts constantly from one position to another, is not so much a victim of bad habit as he is of bad nutrition. Generally such a youngster needs more vitamin B complex, more calcium and phosphorus, more sunshine vitamin D.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Heart Reserve Power.
A's doctor said it is possible to build up heart reserve by resting. B's doctor said it is impossible to build up reserve power, that all one can do is to protect what heart reserve one has by resting. (Mrs. E. J. M.)

Answer.—In valvular trouble when there is decompensation (dilation) rest in bed is essential to restore the reserve power necessary to maintain efficient circulation despite the backward leakage of part of the blood pumped at each heart beat. A heart so handicapped (by valvular insufficiency) must have more than ordinary or normal reserve power in order to pump enough blood to compensate for the constant backward leakage. Send stamped addressed envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on valvular insufficiency. It is the Cr.

Answer.—What does it matter? Send 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Call It Cr." The important thing is to recognize that it is probably communicable, whatever you call it, and to follow the golden rule of hygiene.

"Lady With a House" Spends A Week Looking at "Homes"

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

Monday—Spent the morning making arrangements to see the homes of Miriam Hopkins and Robert Montgomery. She lives right square in New York City in Elizabeth Marbury's old home...

Friday—My best chum from college turned up for an overnight visit, and we had a high old time catching up on each other's family, comparing notes on old friends and remembering gay good times. At the time our parents thought we were pretty awful, but looking back I guess our escapades were rather mild. We both had great literary ambitions and belonged to a group of flaming intellectuals on the campus. Now Shirley says her ambition is to raise two nice little girls and mine is to be as jaunty as she is about her daily work.

Saturday—A batch of samples of certain materials came in this morning and set me to thinking of ways to use them. So I had an elegant—if vicarious—time. There are going to be some beautiful sheer cottons to choose from—lovely embroidered mulls, fine soft voiles that drape and drape deliciously at the windows, figured organza that look more gamine than lace, sheer white muslins with colored figures and theatrical gauzes embroidered with peasant figures in wool.

Sunday—Unexpected guests came in this afternoon and our cupboards were practically bare. However, we always can scrape up a bright little supper of cinnamon toast and tea. If you have pretty cups, spanking fresh napkins and a nice tray, the simplest fare seems festive. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Barbara Bell Dress With Button Trim

A double row of buttons down the front is the sole trimming on this straight little dress for campus or office wear—an extremely smart new note, and just right for a business-like, simple style. This design is delightfully becoming even to thin girls who usually shy away from tailored styles. That's because the line is softened, made more feminine, by inside pleats just above the waistline.

With the tailored, notched collar, you can wear a bright ascot, a sports necklace, or one of the many funny little gadgets to pin to your lapel. This is an unusually easy design to make; just 7 steps in your detailed sew chart. You'll love it in flannel, jersey, wool crepe or flat crepe, with decorative buttons in contrast.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1564-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 2 3/4 yards of 54-inch material.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Convention Guests Feted at Reception Given by Mrs. Gurr

Among the interesting social events featuring the annual state convention of the International Order, King's Daughters and Sons, which closed a two-day session here yesterday, was the reception at which Mrs. Harriet Clark Orr entertained yesterday at her home on Merritt avenue. The affair was a complimentary gesture to Mrs. George H. Prior, of Jewett City, Conn., first vice president of the International Order. Miss Kate C. Hall, of Savannah, who is state president of the Order, and Mrs. C. F. Gore, president of the Good Deed Circle, of Atlanta, were also present.

The occasion assembled more than 400 guests, including the delegates and visitors from practically every city and town in the state. Mrs. Louise Lundy, Mrs. P. B. Agnew, and members of the Good Deed Circle assisted the hostess in entertaining her guests. The beautifully appointed table in the dining room was centered with an attractive arrangement of purple and white flowers, carrying out the colors of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons. The purple and white motif also featured the candles, the mints and other details of decoration.

Special guests present were Mrs. B. G. Parks, of Waycross, who is visiting Mrs. Gurr, and Mrs. Alvin Israel, of Americus.

T. E. L. Class Holds Annual Luncheon

Druid Hills Baptist T. E. L. Class enjoyed the annual luncheon held in the church recently. Rev. James Kennedy, rector of the Epiphany Episcopal church, spoke on "My Utmost for His Highest." Music was furnished by Mrs. Luther Byrd, soloist; Mrs. Byron H. Matthews, pianist; and Charles T. H. Smith, accompanist. Parks Warnock installed the new officers.

Mrs. Mitchell W. Edwards is the class teacher, and Mrs. H. M. Tucker is president. In appreciation of her work, a covered silver dish was presented to the retiring president, Mrs. E. A. Smith.

Mrs. A. D. Summers was chairman of the luncheon committee, Mrs. S. A. Stone chairman of appointments and decorations and W. J. Thompson had charge of making place cards and seating arrangements.

Zeonox Club Meets

At a recent meeting of the Zeonox Club with Miss Eugenia Scruggs on Habersham road, plans for the social activities of the club for the coming season were discussed.

The rushers of the club will be entertained today at a luncheon at Davidson's tea room. The rushers are Misses Jean Ozburn, Aileen Hummel, Mary Alice Whitman, Camille Little, Lillian Shortley, Gloria Gilbert, Dorothy Gluth, Frances Leake and Hilda Tyndall.

On Sunday, the club will hold open house at the home of Miss Elizabeth Stone, on Clifton road.

Miss Betty Mather And Mr. Lindsay Jr. Honored at Parties

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton Mather entertained last evening at a rehearsal supper at their home on St. Augustine place, complimenting their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Mather, and her fiancé, Paul L. Lindsay Jr., whose marriage takes place this evening.

Centering the lace-covered table was a silver slipper containing pastel-colored flowers flanked by silver candlesticks containing white tapers. Miniature silver wedding bells designated the covers of the guests, which included members of the immediate family, wedding party and friends.

Assisting were Mesdames Ray Wilkins and C. E. Jarvis. Yesterday Miss Mather and Mr. Lindsay were central figures at the breakfast at which Jack Noble, of High Point, N. C., entertained. Mr. Noble will be Mr. Lindsay's best man.

A color motif of green and white predominated in the table decorations, and a crystal bowl of white roses centered the lace cloth.

Present were Miss Mather, Mr. Lindsay, Mrs. Cotton Mather, Mr. and Mrs. George Mann, Misses Rhue Bagwell, Martha Jennings, Sara Jarvis, and Miss Cook. Johny Echols, Max Lindsay, Winship Wrigley, Frank Swift and the host.

Another party complimenting Miss Mather and Mr. Lindsay was the aperitif party given by Mrs. C. E. Jarvis and Miss Sara Jarvis yesterday afternoon at their home on East Lake drive.

Centering the lace-covered table was a miniature wedding scene flanked by silver bowls of pastel-colored flowers.

Assisting were Mesdames R. R. Patillo, E. W. Gottenstrater and Roland Easton.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Percy and Mr. Frank Penny entertained at a rehearsal party last evening at the home of the former on Waverly way in honor of Miss Claire Bullock and her fiancé, Sidney Penny, whose marriage takes place today.

Assisting were Mesdames R. R. Patillo, E. W. Gottenstrater and Roland Easton. The lace-covered table was centered with a mound of yellow roses and white snapdragons flanked by five-branched candelabra containing yellow tapers. The yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the mints and other decorations throughout the house.

Mrs. John Bullock, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. William Brownlee poured coffee, and Mesdames Alvin Foster, Charles Shepard, F. B. Ramsey, Carol Payne Jones, Raimundo de Oves, J. E. McQuaig, of Jacksonville, sister of Mrs. Penny, L. H. Will Jr., of Macon; Misses Ida Akers and Dorothy Penny assisted.

STUDENTS ARE TOLD OF CHARACTER NEED

Nine Atlanta Girls at Agnes Scott on Phi Beta Kappa Roll

The highest purpose of the college of today is to develop a valuable citizenry, Dr. Frank P. Graves, national president of Phi Beta Kappa, declared yesterday at exercises at Agnes Scott College. Nine Atlanta girls and more than a dozen other students received recognition for achieving the 1937-38 honor roll.

Dr. Graves defined character as "the sum total, the aggregate, of all our habits." It is as much the duty of colleges, he asserted, to mold the character of students as it is to teach them facts.

Dr. J. R. Cain, president of Agnes Scott, read the honor roll, including: Class of 1938—Miss Jean Bailey, Atlanta; Emily Harral, Atlanta; Cora Kay Hutchins, Atlanta; Virginia Kyle, Huntington, W. Va.; Marie Merritt, Clarksville, Md.; Lou Pate, Newberry, S. C.; Mary Lee Ratliff, Clarkdale, Miss.; Sara Thurnham, Atlanta; Elinor Tyler, Florence, S. C.; Mary Ellen Whetzel, Columbia, S. C.

Class of 1939—Miss Elizabeth Alderman, Atlanta; Evelyn Baty, Birmingham, Ala.; Elyse Blythe, Atlanta; Mary Matthews, Smyrna, Ga.; Sonnie Monahan, Hawaiian, Hawaii; Leta Moore, Barnstable, Mass.; Eva Ann Pridle, Atlanta; Jane Salter, Florence, S. C.; Antoinette and Florence Eled, Decatur; Violet Jane Watkins, Decatur.

Class of 1941—Misses Sabine Brumby, Clarksville, Md.; Betty Jane Stevenson, Savannah, Ga.; Arlene Steinbach, Atlanta, and Mary Bond Utterbach, Louisville, Ky.

DR. J. M. GRAHAM IS KILLED IN FALL

Carolinian Was Son of Prominent Leader in Georgia Baptist Circles.

Dr. James Martin Graham, 52, son of Dr. B. Joseph W. Graham, prominent in Baptist circles of Georgia, was fatally injured yesterday morning when he fell from the roof of his home in Asheville, North Carolina.

The county coroner, Dr. George F. Baise Jr., said Dr. Graham had gone to the roof of his home to saw limbs from a tree and had nailed two six-foot ladders together to reach the limbs. One section of the ladder was found on the roof and the other on the ground.

A native of Upson county, Dr. Graham was reared in Macon and educated in Atlanta. He attended Boys' High school here, later graduating from a business college. He was graduated from the Atlanta School of Medicine shortly before the United States entered the World War.

Serving the medical corps, he entered as a ship surgeon during the war. He later was physician in the government hospital in Dayton, Ohio, for years before going to the United States Veterans' hospital at Oteen, N. C., in 1935. He retired in January, 1937, because of ill health.

He was a Mason, a Shriner and a member of the Baptist church. His father is listed in "Who's Who" as the president of the Index Printing Company, president of the Co-operative Educational Society, moderator of the Atlanta Baptist Association, author of several books and extensive traveler.

Dr. and Mrs. B. J. W. Graham reside at 570 St. Charles avenue, northeast.

Also surviving are his wife and a daughter, Mrs. B. T. Rickman, of Asheville; a brother, Reuben Graham, and three sisters, Mrs. Jewel Matthews, Mrs. Jessie Graham Mobley and Miss Lynette Guhlman.

Relatives here last night did not know whether the body would be returned to Atlanta for burial or not.

GORDON PERFECTS HOMECOMING PLANS

Robert L. McWhorter To Be Principal Speaker.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Oct. 7.—Gordon Military College will celebrate the 87th anniversary of its founding on Friday, October 14—a day featured by a football game between Coach Dickie Butler's Bulldogs and the Middle Georgia College team from Cochran.

Another feature of the homecoming will be an address by Robert L. "Bob" McWhorter, an alumnus of Gordon and a member of the law college faculty at the University of Georgia. The alumni meeting is scheduled for the college auditorium at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. Clarence H. Willis, alumni president, will preside.

The general homecoming committee is planning to honor the four living presidents of the college—G. E. Oliphant, of Macon, who became president in 1901; Joseph D. Smith, of Barnesville, who took office in 1907; L. D. Watson, of Barnesville, and Gainesville, who was named to the presidency in 1923; and J. E. Guillebeau, who has been in charge since 1929.

Other features of the day will include a reception at the Women's Club following the alumni meeting, a tea-dance from 4 until 6 o'clock, and "open house" in many Barnesville homes.

CRASH VICTIMS' ASHES ARE FLOWN TO GOTHAM

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 7. (AP)—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Guggenheim, of New York, who died yesterday at Brunswick, Ga., of injuries received in an automobile accident, were brought here today for cremation.

The ashes were taken by plane to New York this afternoon, accompanied by Dr. Edgar Mayer, son-in-law of the Guggenheims.

The Guggenheims received their fatal injuries when their automobile overturned south of Jacksonville, Fla., on Thursday.

News of Gate City Told in Paragraphs

East Point community singing class will meet at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist church. A special musical program has been arranged and C. S. Wynn and Bill Levy will be in charge.

"Character Building and Happiness" will be the subject of the lecture in applied psychology to be given by Mrs. Rose Marie Ashby at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the pine room of the Ansley hotel.

Morningside Civic League will hold its regular meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night at the community hall, Morningside school. Dr. Stephen C. Reed, president, announced yesterday. Topics of interest to Morningside residents will be discussed, he said.

Condition of Mrs. Mary Lyon Ficklen, 70, of 2114 Howell Mill road, who was injured Thursday in a 90-foot fall into an abandoned well, was reported as slightly improved yesterday at Grady hospital.

Daylight purse-snatching was reported to police yesterday by Mrs. Leila Belle Smith, of 1084 St. Louis place, N. E., who told detectives a negro grabbed her purse containing $65 and ran at Ponce de Leon avenue and Durant place.

Police aid was sought yesterday in search for Juanita Collins, 14, of 347 1-2 Capital avenue, a student at Hoke Smith Junior High school. Her father, James Collins, said she has been missing since last Sunday. She was described as a white girl, 14 years old, weighing 85 pounds, and wearing a red skirt, dark riding pants and tan boots.

Barbecue will be held at noon today to mark opening of the new home of Harold Byrd Post, American Legion, at 225 Sycamore street, Decatur.

Lloyd G. Hayne, of Atlanta, junior, school of commerce and business administration, University of Alabama, has been appointed second lieutenant, infantry, U. S. Army. He was announced from Tuscaloosa, yesterday.

Three Atlanta laundry officials, W. P. Ballard, W. D. Ellis and I. J. Martin, will attend the fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Institute of Laundering of the national association of laundry owners from October 16 to 22 in St. Louis, Mo., according to advanced registrations.

The program will include: "Loch Lomond," "Down the Old Ox Road," "Crazy Rhythms," "In a Little Spanish Town," "Original Broadway Melody Show," "I Can Give You Anything But Love, Baby," "Lullaby in Rhythm," "Dinner Music for a Pack of Hungry Cannibals."

RED FOLEY SHOW—The Smoothies, two boys and a girl who specialize in unusual musical effects, will be guest stars of the second Variety Show, featuring Red Foley, to be heard over WSB at 6 o'clock tonight.

Other highlights of the half-hour show will be the comedy of Kitty O'Neill, the songs of the neighbors, and music by Phil Deane's orchestra.

The program will include: "What You Gonna Do When There Ain't No Dancin'?" "What Goes On Here in My Heart," "California, My California," "Notre Dame's Victory March," "Texas," "When Mother Nature Sings Her Lullaby," "A-Tisket, A-Tasket," "Swinging in the Corn."

EMBICK PRAISES AREA EFFICIENCY

Army's New Commander Plans No Changes.

Major General Stanley D. Embick, new commander of the fourth corps area and the Third army, quietly took over his duties yesterday at his offices in the Federal building.

Describing his new command as "already very efficient," he said he contemplated no changes, but would strive to maintain the present high standard of the area.

Embick succeeds Major General George Von Horn Moseley, who retired September 30 with a statement on social and government trends that brought a sharp rebuke from Secretary of War Harry Woodring.

General Embick arrived here Thursday after a leisurely motor trip from Washington, where he had served for the last two and a half years as a deputy chief of staff.

Patriarchal King of Moonshiners Found Guilty in U. S. Court Here

John Henry Hardin, colorful king of Georgia moonshiners, was found guilty yesterday by a federal trial jury of conspiring to violate internal revenue laws, and of selling 200 gallons of non-tax-paid liquor to Albert Cecil McClain. Found guilty with him on the same charges were his son, Joe, and farm foreman, Gus Miller.

The elder Hardin is also under indictment by a federal grand jury on another conspiracy charge. Sentencing of the trio will be deferred until Thursday, court officials said.

The case went to the jury shortly before noon after arguments by Assistant District Attorney Sidney Kemp, and defense counsel, Robert S. Wood.

The garbled old Etowah valley patriarch took the stand Thursday in his own defense, and stoutly maintained his innocence. He called himself an old man who spent most of his time "rubbin' my rheumatism," and without much active knowledge of what went on in his farm these days.

Hardin, Camp said, has been convicted "eight or ten times" on similar charges in federal courts.

Lyle, Suddenly Realizing She Is in Love With Stephen, Regrets Planned Trip

By MARGARET NICHOLS.
INSTALLMENT XXV.

There was a record-breaking crowd at the races. Lyle came away richer by a few dollars.

"Didn't I tell you we'd be lucky on the first race?" he asked as they walked to the car.

"You're nearly always right, Stephen." After they had been driving for some time, she said with a little sigh, "I've got to be going back to New York, to work. I'm not a vice president. I'm going back day after tomorrow. Then I'll be at the store on Monday."

"Do you want to go back?" Keeping his eyes ahead but eager for each word...

Her eyes were serious. "To work, yes. But it will be different now, won't it? We've had so much fun, more fun than I've ever had. I haven't played so much since I was a child. You take your childhood play for granted. I'll begin a new life in New York. I think I'll take a small apartment of my own. Bonnie and Michael should have their home to themselves."

"Don't forget Paris!" How he'd like to show her Paris! "You have a successful career ahead of you, Lyle. You have so much ahead of you." But he did not want a successful career and other loves ahead of her. He wanted to marry her and show her Paris and bring her back to the Connecticut house and come home to her at the end of the day.

He wanted to sit in his favorite chair in the country house and look up the steps and know that any moment she'd be coming down to him—that she would never leave him. He wanted to lavish lovely things on her and take her to lovely places.

"Dreams coming true," she said quietly. But success was not the most wished for dream. To love, to be loved all the days of her life...

"If you're determined to go back day after tomorrow..." "Not even a vice president can keep me." She was smiling, eyes looking up. "I've a stern sense of duty, I guess. I don't want Miss Penniman to think I've turned out to be a Miami playgirl. She was sweet about my coming. But if she knew I'd been playing with the vice president..."

"She'd get a kick out of it. That's the kind of gal she is. Very well, if you must go. We'll celebrate tonight and tomorrow night. He frowned suddenly. "No, not tomorrow night, I'm afraid. If I'd known you were going back after tomorrow, I shouldn't have asked an old friend who happens to be staying at my hotel to dinner. We'll have to celebrate your departure tonight."

She felt a sting of disappointment. He wouldn't be with her tomorrow night, her last night. He'd be with another girl. She asked, knowing she had no right to ask, "A girl?"

"A girl I thought I was in love with once," he said. "Stephen, how do you know when you are really in love? How do you know when it's real and true and beautiful? How do you know it's the kind that will wear and endure?"

He did not speak for a moment. Then he said, "There are few people who at some time or another don't make a mistake in love. You're lucky if you guess right—the first time. Just plain lucky. People have flaws and lacks but occasionally there are two people who are perfect for each other."

Jeff had been wrong for Lyle and right for Troy, he believed. You are perfect for me, he thought, and I could be perfect for you.

He left her, saying, "Be back at eight." And he wanted to tell her to wear the silver dress because she was so lovely in it and because the night she had worn it last he had known he loved her.

It was before eight when Stephen came that evening. Lyle found him in the living room talking to her mother and Aunt Leila. And she was wearing the silver dress.

Again Esther Marsh saw them walk down the path together to his car. Jeff Conway had given Lyle only ardent words and kisses, she thought. Stephen's love was strong and silent and true. Jeff was shadow. Stephen was steel.

He took her to a hotel dining room where a famous orchestra was playing. And when the waiter went away with their order, he asked her to dance.

And Lyle felt that she was dancing in enchantment because he didn't speak and in the silence between them, with the sweet music around them, she felt magic in his touch. All at once she was afraid to speak. Say something light and gay? She couldn't! The vivid, beautiful dresses on dancing women were blurred. Don't let the music stop, ever! Don't let this new enchantment end!

But the music stopped and the people scattered. Then Lyle saw a lovely blonde girl in a graceful green dress pause on the floor and smile at Stephen. There was a young man with her.

"Hello, Stephen," the girl said. "We meet again."

There were introductions. The girl was Gwynne Henley. And Lyle knew, walking back to the table, that Gwynne Henley was the girl Stephen was taking to dinner tomorrow night. And she couldn't bear it! Cold hands were on her heart again. She couldn't bear to go back to New York and leave Stephen in Miami, seeing that lovely girl every day...

Because Lyle had known during the enchanted moments while they had been enclosed in soft, sweet music, had known in a startling flash that weakened her, that she was in love with Stephen. But, no, she couldn't be! You couldn't fall out of love and in love again so quickly. And her jealousy of the girl she had just met shamed her.

Stephen lit a cigarette. "You're lovely tonight, Lyle. I like that dress. I've an interest in that particular dress. Hungry? You shouldn't be after, what was it, hot dogs and peanuts at the races?"

"And root beer." She looked at him as she had never looked at him before, seeing him as she had never seen him before. Her heart was thudding. Stephen, the way you smile, the way you grow back from your forehead! The way you narrow your eyes, keen blue eyes that never miss anything, eyes that understand, that know, that see through people...

Your mouth, stern when it's unsmiling, charming and boyish when it's smiling. Your strong, vital, brown hands...

"Dance again?" he asked. "Have I or have I not ever apologized for my poor dancing?"

"You did not need to have," Stephen, never apologize to me for anything! Some day—let me get up and put her arms around him, thinking "Stephen, some day let me apologize to you for going to sleep on your shoulder. Going to sleep on his shoulder... His shoulder! She was far from sleep now with her heart hammering and her eyes excited.

"I'm in love with him. Tonight I knew. And I've known him all these months. I've seen him so often, and I didn't..." That was because Jeff had been in her heart. The music enclosed them again. But she did not glance up. She was going back to New York day after tomorrow and she was leaving Stephen to see a beautiful girl every day, a girl he'd been in love with once, he'd said. She was going back to days and nights of work, to looking for a new place to live, and to begin a new life, a successful life. She would have her own apartment and she would go to Paris and people would begin to hear and talk about Lyle Marsh, the artist. It sounded very nice, didn't it? And Stephen would probably ask her to dinner and ask her to Connecticut for week ends. Stephen Tennant, her good friend. And people would probably say as they had said of him and Susan Gibson before she married her old sweetheart, "There's no romance between them."

They danced several hours into the next day.

At the door of Aunt Leila's house he said, "Still insist upon going back tomorrow? I'll phone in the morning and you can tell me what time your train is leaving and I'll see you off. I'm sorry about being tied up tonight with Gwynne."

Gwynne... Imps of jealousy tormented her. She said, "It's all right, Stephen. You've taken me so many places and tonight was a nice finishing touch." Finishing touch...

When he left, she did not go into the house but sat in the patio, feeling the breeze cool her warm face. And she thought of every time she had seen Stephen since the first time, and every memory was sweet. She had been wrong several times, wrong and blind and stupid, defending a false, shabby love. What was she to him? He would never have noticed her but for Stephen since the first time with Jeff. "Then he liked my work and probably felt sorry for me because I was young and new in New York and because he knew all the time the kind of man Jeff really is."

Her eyes went skyward. Stars... Tonight she had touched them again...

She was cold but she did not go in. It was good to look at the stars, seeing no clouds between you and them. It was good to think clear and straight, to realize and admit that you had been wrong, and to know that at last you were right.

At breakfast she told her mother that she was going back to New York the next day.

"Is Stephen going, too?" Esther asked. "No."

"Then I suppose you'll celebrate tonight!" she smiled. "Judging from the time you got in last night, I'd say you celebrated then, too."

NOTRE DAME IS HEAVY FAVORITE OVER TECH

Georgia Turns on Power in 2d Half To Crush Furman, 38-7

Knute Rockne once said, "Give Alex (Coach Alexander) good tackles and he'll stop anybody's running game." Well, I think one can safely say Alex has good tackles this year. In fact, he has a good line from end to end.

The Jackets gave Mercer's running game fits, or perhaps running fits. But Mercer is not Notre Dame.

Still, what I am driving at is Georgia Tech may give the Fighting Irish a whale of a game today if—and it's a big if—they can stop the passing.

The Irish are talented. They probably deserve the rating of No. 1 which generally has been bestowed upon them. Coach Elmer Layden throws up his hands in horror whenever it is mentioned and says it's all a mistake in no uncertain terms.

But the fact remains the Irish are talented. Every one of the 36 men they brought here look great physically and there is a lot of speed. The Irish backs and ends handle the football like a baseball. There is team speed.

Asked about the weight of the team, Layden said: "I have never checked on it. I don't care about the weight; I'm interested in how much ground they can gain."

Grant Field, while changed considerably, looked familiar to Layden. He played here in 1922. The Four Horsemen literally were born on Grant Field.

The original starting backfield against Tech that day was Frank Thomas, quarterback; Elmer Layden, left half; Connell and Ortny, right half and fullback.

Later in the game appeared Harry Stuhldreher, Jim Crowley and Don Miller. The immortal Four Horsemen were beginning a career unparalleled in the annals of football and not a soul in the crowd knew about it, quite naturally.

But to get back to the game today. Tech's defense against running plays is figured to be good. But the Irish passes constitute a formidable threat.

If anything does it, an aerial bombardment will wreck Tech, in this corner's opinion.

LAYDEN IS UNCOMMUNICATIVE.

Layden, generally thought to be a fellow not given to pessimism, was about as communicative as a clam yesterday.

He was restless. He seemed to be haunted by the specter of a No. 1 ranking. He described the rating of Notre Dame as a "false evaluation following the rout of Kansas."

The Irish skipper may be right. Kansas may not be so hot.

HOW FIGHTING IRISH WILL LINE UP AGAINST YELLOW JACKETS TODAY AT GRANT FIELD

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame coach, trotted out this array of warriors as Bill Wilson, Constitution cameraman, called for the lineup the Irish will start against Georgia Tech here this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The South Bend squad of 36 men showed plenty of spirit and drive in its workout at Grant field yesterday afternoon. Notre Dame last appeared in Atlanta in 1929. From left to right in the line: Carl Brown, Ed Beiner, Jim McGoldrick, Ed Longhi, Augie Bossu, Paul

Kell and John Kelly. In the backfield—Steve Sitko, quarterback; Harry Stevenson, left half; Lou Zontini, right half, and Mario Tonelli, fullback. The strong Jacket line is expected to test the Irish offense.

L. S. U. Accorded Edge Over Rice in Night Game at Baton Rouge.

Knowing well in advance that it's a "hit-and-miss" proposition, the "expecting corps" of this football department went into a huddle yesterday and reported bravely its guesses on this week's Southeastern conference gridiron program.

Four games on the bill-of-fare stumped the prognosticators no end, forcing the conference into some three hours of bickering, but, with only a passing glance at the

Georgia Sparked By Mathews, Hise

Lumpkin and Thomas Also Shine as Bulldogs Roll Up 25 First Downs.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

SANFORD STADIUM, ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 7.—Joel Hunt's Georgia Bulldogs romped over Furman, 38 to 7, here today before a slim crowd of less than 5,000 spectators.

Little Dooley Mathews, third-string back, sparked the Bulldog attack with three long runs late in the game. Billy Mims' passing, Earl Hise's passing and running, and Carroll Thomas' pass-receiving were other highlights of the Georgia attack.

The Bulldogs held only a 14-7 lead at the half but turned on the steam in the second semester and scored four more touchdowns. Jimmy Fordham accounted for two of the markers, while Billy Mims, Alex McCaskill, Dooley Mathews and Knox Eldredge made the others.

The Furmans were never in the

NEW TECH GYM TO OPEN TODAY

Will Be Used as Auditorium Also; Seats 2,500.

For the first time in six years Georgia Tech will have a gymnasium of its own this morning when the new, modern, monolithic concrete structure on Third street, next to the naval armory, will be opened for the first time to receive the crowds attending the celebration of the 50th anniversary.

Erected at a cost of over $150,000 dollars, the building is so constructed that it may be used both as a gymnasium with basketball court and seats, and as an auditorium.

30,000 Will Watch Irish and Jackets

Alex Has Strong Line But Tech Victory Would Rock Football World.

By JACK TROY.

A victory for Georgia Tech over Notre Dame this afternoon would be shocking, but it is not at all impossible. The Fighting Irish, prime favorites and the foremost team in the country, according to popular opinion, face the Yellow Jackets at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Grant Field.

A capacity crowd of 30,000 will jam the horseshoe and overflow into the temporary seats to see what is expected to be a tense, colorful intersectional conflict.

It's the second game for both teams. The Fighting Irish startled a nation last week by routing Kansas, 52 to 0. Georgia Tech took the Mercer opener, 19 to 0.

The Jackets were most impressive on defense. The Irish apparently had everything.

A general feeling among the wagering class is that the Irish will leave the Rambling Wreck as a shambles in their wake.

But the Jackets, with a strong line, may have something to say about this. The boys, themselves

'BAMA MAY YET PLAY MINNESOTA, GRAVES HOPEFUL

Receipts Would Go for Disaster Relief; Roosevelt 'Blesses' Idea.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 7.—(AP)—His suggestion for an inter-sectional football game to raise New England flood and hurricane relief funds having received President's "blessing," Governor Bibb Graves notified the American Red Cross formally today of his proposal.

Graves wired Norman Davis, Red Cross, that while he was "aware" that the organization itself did not sponsor such methods of raising funds, "I am particularly anxious to show Alabama's appreciation for aid in our 1929 floods by taking the lead in helping you help others in even greater distress."

The executive has suggested that the Universities of Alabama and Minnesota meet either in New York or Chicago—the gate receipts to go for disaster relief—but Big Ten officials expressed opinion conference rules would prohibit such a game.

Graves said today he was "still hopeful" technicalities would be removed. He said he was advised by Stephen Early, a White House secretary, that President Roosevelt "gave the idea his blessing and asked that you work out arrangements" with Red Cross officials.

Leaving for Tuscaloosa tonight to attend the Alabama-North Carolina State game and a meeting of the university board of trustees tomorrow, the Governor indicated he would continue his campaign for an inter-sectional "disaster relief" contest. Alabama University officials have not commented on his suggestion.

HODGSON GETS UP IN THE AIR--GILLESPIE GETS HIS MAN--AND HISE GETS TEN YARDS!

There was quite a hole in the Furman line on this play yesterday. No. 81 is Earl Hise, one of the stars of the game for Georgia, who is starting on a 10-yard run in the first quarter. Bob Salisbury, Bulldog blocking back, is the gentleman kneeling on the ground, and Winston Hodgson, guard, is the young man jumping over Salisbury. Marvin Gillespie is shown at extreme right just before taking Shetley, of Furman, out of the play. Hise's running and passing was one of the features of the game. Another was the blocking of the entire Bulldog eleven. In defeating Furman yesterday, the Bulldogs won the 15th of 16 games played with the Hurricane. Furman has won only one game.

and piled up 25 first downs to Furman's six. Mathews, 155-pound back, brought the small crowd to its feet with his sparkling runs. He entered the game in the fourth quarter and immediately got off his first run of 18 yards. His second jaunt came a few minutes later when he sped around Furman's right end for 43 yards and put the ball on the Furman 8. His last trip came a few minutes before the game ended and netted 32 yards.

Billy Mims, hero of Georgia's victory over South Carolina last week, continued his brilliant passing this afternoon and Earl Hise also passed effectively, ran with shiftily deception and great power.

FIRST TOUCHDOWN.

Mims passed 34 yards to Marvin Gillespie, who was tackled at the Furman three, 33 yards to Alex McCaskill for a touchdown, and finally to Knox Eldredge, 6 yards for a touchdown.

These tosses had a definite bearing on the scoring while several others were completed by the Atlanta sharpshooter.

Hise contributed runs of 22 and 16 yards besides numerous other gains in addition to passing 20 yards to Bob Salisbury who was tackled at Furman's 11. Hise also passed to Carroll Thomas for 26 yards and got off several other neat throws.

Furman's score came on a 25-yard pass from Ray Zima to Grover Huppel.

The Bulldog offense clicked throughout the game and a big red line was smearing Furman plays almost without exception. So effective was the Georgia attack only two punts came from her backs in the entire game. Play was almost solely confined to Furman territory with the Hurricane unable to get the ball as far as the Bulldog 20 with the exception of their touchdown.

ENDS THREAT.

It was in the third quarter that the Purples drove to the 20 and then an 8-yard loss, inflicted by Thomas, on an attempted end run put them back and ended the threat.

In the Georgia line, Captain Quinton Lumpkin and Winston Hodgson stood out. Furman's Hugh Wofford, at guard, and Cecil Hinson, at tackle, were effective. Captain George Patrick, at quarterback, and C. V. Lipscomb led the futile attack on the big Bulldog line. Georgia scored six touchdowns but kicked only two extra points. The first two markers came in the second period, they got one more in the third and the last trio came in the fourth.

GAIN COMFORT.

Georgia's supporters gained more comfort from the Bulldogs' improved blocking than any other one thing except, maybe, the score. At times, red-shirts moved down tacklers as if they were so many dummies in a dummy scrimmage.

Noticeable jobs were turned in by Gillespie and Smiley Johnson in the line and Salisbury and Jimmy Fordham in the backfield. Especially did the blocking look good on Mathews' long runs.

Statistics greatly favor the Bulldogs, who had a net gain of 350 yards rushing to 51 for Furman. Georgia tried 15 passes and completed eight for 171 yards while the Purples tried the same number and completed six. Hum's team kicked only twice in the game for an average of 32.5 while the Furmans punted nine times for a 37.5 average.

FIRST QUARTER.

The Bulldogs received the kickoff with Hunnicutt taking the ball on his own five and returning to his 33.

On the first play from scrimmage Earl Hise took the ball off left tackle for an 18-yard gain and a first down on the Furman 46.

Here the Bulldogs started a very definite drive which ended when Hunnicutt failed by inches to make it a first down on the Furman 27. Hise led the futile attack with gains over Furman's weak left tackle. Link replaced Cornwall at that position.

Georgia forced a punt and then started another drive which was halted on the Furman nine-yard line when Hise failed to make it a first down.

The Bulldogs had used nothing but running plays and had gained six first downs to none for Furman.

Mims and McCaskill replaced Hise and Thomas for Georgia as the quarter ended. Score: Georgia 0; Furman 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Georgia threw her first pass and punted for the first time early in the second period. Mims' pass to McCaskill was incomplete and Mims kicked out of bounds on the Furman 17.

The Hurricanes could not gain through the Bulldog line and a poor punt led to Georgia's first touchdown. Clayton kicked out of bounds on the Furman 40 and after a running play and pass failed, Mims passed 34 yards to Gillespie who was run out of bounds on the Furman three.

Fordham failed at the line and then Mims went over left tackle for a touchdown.

Bill Badgett kicked the extra point for Mims holding the ball. Badgett kicked off, but Furman couldn't gain, and kicked to Georgia who had the ball on her own 38.

After an exchange of punts the Bulldogs took the ball on their own 39.

Then Earl Hise, back in the line-up for Mims, passed 20 yards to Bob Salisbury and the Bulldog quarterback sped to the Furman 11 before Zima stopped him.

Hise got three at left end and then four at center before Huppel stopped him. Jimmy Fordham then rammed over for a touchdown and Alex McCaskill kicked the extra point.

Score: Georgia 14; Furman 0. Hise kicked off to the Purples who made a touchdown before losing the ball. A storm of Georgia substitutes went in the game and Furman made her first down when they got 12 yards on two tries at the Bulldog line.

It was Furman's ball, first and ten on the Bulldog 48. Thomas replaced Lipscomb for Furman and passed to King for a first down at the Georgia 25. On the next play, Zima passed to Huppel for a touchdown. Clayton's kick skimmed over the crossbar for the extra point.

Score: Georgia 14; Furman 7. The half ended shortly after the kickoff.

THIRD QUARTER.

The Bulldogs kicked off and after Furman was forced to punt, Georgia started her third touchdown drive. Lipscomb punted to Hise on the Georgia 22 and Hise returned to his own 36, with Gillespie doing some neat blocking.

Hise then passed to End Carroll Thomas for a first down at the Furman 47. Hise passed again, this time to Gillespie for seven yards, and then Hise made it a first down at the Furman 36.

Once again, Hise passed to Thomas for a first down on Furman's 21, a gain of 13 yards. Hise, that same scrapper, got 16 at right end and carried the ball to the Hurricane 6.

Fordham failed by inches for the touchdown and then bucked it over. Badgett missed the extra point.

Score: Georgia 20, Furman 7. Georgia threatened again immediately after the kickoff when Gillespie recovered Lipscomb's fumble on the Furman 26. However, Georgia drew a 15-yard penalty for holding and after futile passes by Hise, the ball went over on the Furman 32. Here Furman mixed passes with effective running plays and drove to the Georgia 20. But Thomas threw Lipscomb for an 8-yard loss at end and a couple of incomplete passes ended the threat as the ball went over on the Bulldog 21.

Here the Bulldogs started another march which was sparked by a 22-yard sprint by Hise. The march was on the Furman 20 as the quarter ended.

Score: Georgia 20, Furman 7. FOURTH QUARTER.

Mims replaced Hise for Georgia as the fourth quarter started. A flock of other substitutes went in.

Furman halted the drive, however, after the Bulldogs drove to the five-yard line as Mims gained 13 yards around end. An offside penalty and a five-yard loss drove the Bulldogs back to the 15 and Mims' fourth down pass intended for James Skipworth, an end, was incomplete and the ball went over to Furman on their own 20.

Georgia's line held and the Bulldogs started another drive on her own 34. Fordham and little Dooley Mathews in the game for Hunnicutt, ripped off yardage that brought the ball to the Furman 32. Mathews, running like a diminutive battering ram, was credited with an 18-yard jaunt on the march.

After a five-yard penalty had set the Bulldogs back to the 38, Mims dropped back and shot a beautiful pass to Alex McCaskill on the goal line. McCaskill stepped over for the score but failed in his attempt at the extra point.

Score: Georgia 26; Furman 7. After the kickoff, Georgia had the ball on her own 40 and Dooley Mathews sped through the line for 43 yards to the Furman 8. It was the longest run of the day and a great exhibition by the little Georgia back.

Georgia got two at the line and on the next play, Mathews fairly pushed tacklers out of his way as he sped over for a touchdown. Eldredge's kick was no good.

Score: Georgia 32; Furman 7. Immediately after Georgia forced a Furman punt, Mathews then sped around end for 32 yards to the Furman 31. Mims and Fordham made it a first down on the Furman 20, in two tries.

There were two and a half minutes left in the game. Fordham Mims and Mathews then ripped off another first down on the Furman 10. Fordham got four, and

PETRELS HOLD 6-0 ADVANTAGE AS HALF ENDS

Three Well-Organized Drives Net Touchdowns for Winners.

By ROY WHITE.

Three well-organized touchdowns gave Oglethorpe a 19-to-6 victory over Wofford's Terriers Friday afternoon at Hermance field. It was the first win for the season for the Petrels and their fifth straight over Wofford, who suffered their third straight reverse this year.

Oglethorpe scored first in the opening period on a 65-yard drive, again in the third period on a 54-yard march and again late in the game on a 79-yard offensive.

The Petrels entered the game with a badly crippled lineup, but those reserves came through with a wonderful exhibition of teamwork when once a touchdown march was under way.

Antony Zelencik, a big tackle, who played the best defensive game on the field, scored the first touchdown for the Petrels. Elmer George rammed Wofford's line for a short gain but fumbled the ball in the end zone and Zelencik recovered for the six points. LoCasio's 18-yard run and a 12-yard pass, Kelly to Paulk, and Kelly's 15-yard sprint featured the 65-yard drive.

STUBBORN LINE.

Oglethorpe had the ball most of the second quarter, but a stubborn Wofford line fought off every threat.

The Petrels came back strong in the third period and scored. Fred Kelley on a sweeping end run behind some fine blocking, the best of the game, ran 27 yards for the six points. Paulk and George contributed two nice first down gains to place the ball in scoring position.

Wofford was on the offensive most of the third quarter and outgained the Petrels plenty, but was able to score but once. On two other drives Wofford carried the ball to the 11 and 3-yard lines, only to be turned back, once on a fumble and the other on a fourth down pass over the goal line.

Hilton, a speedy halfback, scored for the Terriers on a 66-yard drive. He opened the drive with a 27-yard sprint, and closed it with a 12-yard sweeping end run. Danner also aided materially in the drive.

Oglethorpe outgained the visitors 15 first downs to 12, bunching three downs in the first period, three more in the third and five in the last quarter.

TURNED BACK.

Wofford drove to the 12-yard line in the first quarter, but was turned back when a forward passing attack was grounded. Just before the half ended, Wofford was headed towards Oglethorpe's goal, but time was called.

Fred Kelley, LoCasio, and George in the backfield and Mills and A. Zelencik in the line were outstanding for the winners. Hilton and Danner in the backfield and Ballenger, Shealy and Moore in the line were outstanding for Wofford.

Bryant Opposes Pearson in Third World Series Game Today

Buckeyes Favored Over Trojans Today

Crowd of 73,000 Expected; Minnesota Goes Against Purdue; Columbia Invades West Point.

By BILL BONI.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(P)—The country's major college football teams, plunging into action with no regard for the World Series counter-attraction or the threats of their rivals, tomorrow will furnish football fare heavy enough to lure millions of customers to the feast and leave the prognosticators with a severe case of nervous indigestion.

Taking customer reaction as the best barometer, the "big game" of the day is the intersectional duel between Ohio State's Big Ten contenders and Southern California. A crowd of 73,000 is expected to jam the double-decked stands at Columbus, where the spectator boiling point is notably low and enthusiasm notably high.

Yet the Big Ten alone offers counter attractions in four all-conference games topped by Minnesota's league bow against Purdue; four of the Big Six elevens are booked for intra-sectional warfare, and three all-ivy league games, plus Columbia's battle with Army, stand out in the east.

Notre Dame's intersectional tilt with Georgia Tech and the meeting of Tennessee and Auburn are tops in the south; pass-conscious Baylor and Arkansas lead off the southwest card, and on the Pacific coast it's Santa Clara against Texas A. & M., Stanford against Washington State, and U. C. L. A. against Washington.

Banking on his favorite 4-3-3-1 defense—four aspirins, three aspirins, three aspirins and one headache powder—this observer hazards the following predictions (probably attendance figures in parentheses):

Ohio State-Southern California (73,000): Bolstered by their defeat of Indiana, the Buckeyes should beat back the burly Trojans, who still have to show what made them one of the advance favorites for coast honors.

Army-Columbia (27,000): The Lions have Sid Luckman but only three capable substitutes. Army has more material and has intercepted Luckman's passes for victory the last two years. If lightning can strike in the same place twice, it can do it three times. Army in a whole of a scrap.

Tennessee-Auburn (20,000): The Plainsmen appear to lack scoring punch. Tennessee's defense is stout.

Arkansas-Baylor (18,000): In Texas Christian last week in a game in which four of the five touchdowns came on passes, in a game like that, Baylor's Billy Patterson should be a handy man to have around. Baylor has him. Baylor's Santa Clara-Texas A. & M. (20,000): They ride Bronco in Texas but not this kind of bronco. Santa Clara.

Colgate-Duke (25,000): The Blue Devils traveled farther for this game than they ever have. They didn't come for the train ride. Duke.

Pennsylvania-Yale (50,000): Coach George Munger's first Penn team got away to a fine start. His assistants, under Dick Harlow at Harvard, learned most

COCKY YANKEES SEEK TO SWEEP FOUR STRAIGHT

Even American Leaguers Laud the Courage of Dizzy Dean.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs finally beat the New York Yankees today—beat them into town by 10 minutes—as both the National and American league champions arrived from Chicago to resume the World Series tomorrow at Yankee stadium with the Bronx Bombers holding a 2-0 lead in games.

As the Cub special drew into Pennsylvania station, all was quiet. Gabby Hartnett's gang, apparently still was suffering from shell shock after the Yankee-home run guns exploded in their faces in yesterday's second game.

The Yankees, in contrast, were happy and confident, and even happier when Manager Joe McCarthy gave them the day off. Although none of the players would say so definitely, there was a strong impression that they felt they could sweep the next two games and the series in four straight.

Hartnett and McCarthy made no changes in their pitching selections for tomorrow's game. Hartnett will try with Clay Bryant and McCarthy, whose 1936 and 1937 champions are hoping for a new record of three straight series triumphs, will counter with Monte Pearson.

Several hundred fans took up vantage points at the Pennsylvania station to act as official greeters. They lined the stairway up which the players walked from their train, and they flocked to the taxicab stand to watch them leave.

CROSETTI AILING.
Both clubs were in good physical condition after the two Chicago games. Frankie Crosetti, Yankees' shortstop star and hero of the opening engagements, reported with a swelling across the middle three fingers of his glove hand, but no one regarded it as serious.

"It comes from so many hits and catches in the infield," he explained as he rubbed ice on the sore spot. "But, don't worry, I'll be on hand and playing tomorrow."

McCarthy told baseball writers that he was giving the players a "day off" because of the noon hour at which the train arrived, and also because the Cubs probably would want to use the Yankee stadium for practice.

"You know," he said, "Gabby gave us the 1:30 practice hour at Wrigley field, so it's only fair for me to let him use the park here when he wants to. And since we didn't arrive until noon, we could hardly be out there for a workout before 2 o'clock, anyway."

Although he refused to say who his pitcher in Sunday's fourth game would be, the indication was big Red Ruffing, winner over Bill Lee in the opener, would again oppose the Cub right hand ace.

As the happy, confident Yankees, and the quiet, unsmiling Chicagoans pulled into the city, the fans around town, even the most dyed-in-the-wool National league supporters, believed the series probably would end in four straight victories for the Yankees.

Jack Doyle's new betting odds were prohibitive in favor of "murderers' row," quoting 9 to 1 against the Cubs and 6 to 5 against the Yankees for the series. He listed the odds on tomorrow's game at 17 to 10 against Chicago and 2 to 5 against the Yankees.

Jones, Garlington Tie C. Yates, Gunn

An 18-hole exhibition match yesterday at East Lake in which Bobby Jones and Dick Garlington played the team of Charlie Yates and Wats Gunn, wound up all square when Garlington was on the 18th green with his tee shot and sank a 20-foot putt for a birdie two. Yates, putting first, had sunk a 20-footer for a par three. Coming to the 18th, Yates and Gunn were 1 up.

Bobby Jones had a 70, which was low for the quartet. Yates and Garlington carded 73 and Gunn had a 74. Charlie and Wats were 3 up at the turn, but Bob got hot on the back stretch and fired a 33, which, with Dick's fine birdie on the 18th, was enough to square the match.

Don't Sell Tech Short!

Stegeman Lauds Sturdy Jacket Defense and Coach W. A. Alexander's Ability To Prepare for One Particular Football Game.

By H. J. Stegeman
The Georgia Tech-Notre Dame game appears to have the experts pretty well baffled in their predictions. Those who go strictly on form can foresee nothing but a severe beating for the Engineers when they add up the scores of the Notre Dame-Kansas and the Kansas-Texas games. The Kansas team that Notre Dame beat by one of their largest scores of recent years had won a close game from the University of Texas the week before. The University of Texas does not have one of the leading teams of the southwest, but they have the highest paid coach in the business and do not lack material—they should not be a pushover at any rate.

Notre Dame is undoubtedly a potent force this year, but I doubt sincerely if they are as strong as their score over Kansas seems to indicate. All reports from the game in South Bend emphasized the poor tackling of the Kansas secondary defense, the poorest that South Bend spectators could remember. Certainly any team that can pile up such a huge score as Notre Dame did while using over seven full teams must be playing against almost negligible opposition. If Coach Elmer Layden had restricted his substitutions to three teams, and still had won the game by such a large score, I would have been more impressed with their scoring ability.

Of the seven teams that he used all seemed to score with equal ease, the fourth and fifth teams putting on the biggest scoring spree. If the secondary strength of the Kansas team was so glaringly weak in tackling, it stands to reason that the team was also very weak in the line, to allow the backfield men so many tackling duties. The Notre Dame runners will meet a very different proposition on Grant field. Tech is well equipped with linemen and as the team develops, the line is due to become one of the strong ones in this section. This is particularly true of the end and tackle positions, where ample reserve men are available.

In Captain Jack Chivington Georgia Tech has an outstanding center. He is an inspirational leader, and a very fine diagnostician of plays. He will probably play the entire game, as his presence means a great deal to Tech's defensive tactics and playing morale. Since Coach Alexander has never been averse to using a defense that corresponds very closely to the eight-man line against Notre Dame formations, the knowledge of the proper downs and positions on the field where this defense can best be used is of great importance. Chivington is an intelligent player and handles the shifting of defensive formations in fine shape.

Coach Alexander can be depended upon to set up a strong defense. There is not a coach in the south that has the respect of his opponents that Alexander has in the matter of getting a team ready for one particular game. If he considers his own team advanced far enough to take everything for two or three quarters, the fans may see a gambling offense. So don't write Georgia Tech off too quickly as being out of the picture in this game. The chances of victory are of course very slim, but it is in situations of this sort that sparkling defensive play thrives, and the Tech defense can be depended upon to give a good account of itself.

At the downtown alleys this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, a five-game hand-sweepstakes will be rolled with no entry fee other than the cost of the five games to be rolled being charged.

G. M. A. ELEVEN CRUSHES BAMANS AT COLLEGE PARK

Bud Harris' Eleven Completely Outclasses Grid-ders From LeFayette.

G. M. A. completely routed an outclassed eleven from LaFayette, Ala., yesterday, 79 to 0, at College Park.

The Cadets scored three touchdowns on the first four plays before Coach Bud Harris withdrew his regulars. Harris used his entire squad of 32 players in the game.

Cook was the star of the game for the winners, scoring two touchdowns on intercepted passes. The first was good for 48 yards and the second went 56 yards.

Richardson got three of the Cadet touchdowns, and three extra-points; Hayes crashed over for three touchdowns and scored two extra-points; Anderson made two touchdowns and Fee also got a pair.

G. M. A.'s Bee team will play Baylor Bees this morning at 10 o'clock.

Score by periods:
G. M. A. 33 7 13 26-79

VOLS FAVORED TO LICK TIGERS

(INTERSECTIONAL.)
Georgia Tech-Notre Dame: The hope here of Georgia Tech is in keeping the score low. Bill Alexander's Yellow Jackets have a good defensive club, but the offensive punch is lacking. Notre Dame's scoring may have to be done through the air and by that route the fighting Irish seem capable of running up a comfortable margin. Notre Dame by three touchdowns.
Rice-Louisiana State: These teams, rated strongly in the nation's lineup, took it on the chin in opening games. Louisiana State's defense is a home edging out Rice. Smartering under those setbacks, the teams are expected to unleash all guns at each other tonight at Baton Rouge. Rice has the backfield combination with Ernie Laine-Ollie Cor-dill combination; Louisiana State has the better line. A close game, but Louisiana State gets the nod. A tie is unlikely.

Tennessee-Auburn: George Cafego, the West Virginia wheelhorse, and his sophomore support, seem to pack too much offensive punch for the Auburns. The Tennessee line is the question. If it can check Auburn's speedy backs, like Spec Kelly, O'Gwynne and McGowan, Bob Neyland's team will get many more gray hairs. Jack McHugher's team is never a push-over for anyone, but Tennessee gets the call by a touchdown.
Kentucky-Vanderbilt: Ray Morrison's Vanderbilt team has been sluggish in early games. Kentucky has romped to easy wins over two small teams. Reports from Lexington say Ab Kirwan has the best organized club in years at the Blue Grass institution. This is a good spot for an upset, but the margin information favors Vanderbilt by a small margin.

Florida-Sewanee: The Sewanee Tigers haven't won a conference game since the league was formed in 1923. Florida, expected to be one of the most improved clubs in the Southeastern, has dropped games to Stetson and Mississippi State. Florida packs too much for Sewanee and gets on the comeback trail. The margin should be about three touchdowns.

(INTERCONFERENCE.)
Alabama-N. C. State: The Crimson Tide rolls on. It's homecoming day at Tuscaloosa and Frank Thomas may let his boys go to town for the benefit of the old grade, but you can bet your last dime he'll be thinking no little about that Tennessee game next week. Alabama by four touchdowns, at least.
Tulane-North Carolina: Red Dawson's Tulane lost a tough game to Clemson and played a scoreless tie with Auburn. He has a good line and as fine a set of backs as there are in the league. North Carolina has not been through a real test. This will be a dog-fight all the way, but the crystal-gazing member of department's committee sees Tulane.

The Citadel Defeats Presbyterian, 12 to 0

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 7.—(P)—The Citadel's Light Brigade, held in check throughout the first half, broke away in the last two quarters tonight and defeated Presbyterian College, 12 to 0.

The Cadets used passes in setting the stages in the third and fourth quarters for Stubbs and Burrows to score.
D. Moore, Presbyterian end, played a brilliant game, smashing into the Cadet backfield for numerous tackles.

'HELL RIDERS' AT FAIR TODAY

Mickey Martin and his troupe of 14 "Hell Riders" will be featured at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Southeastern Fair's sport program on the race track.

Martin is recognized as king of the daredevil drivers and has one of the best balanced shows of its kind in the country. He has a number of amusing antics, with "Doggie" Artrip, daredevil clown, leading the way.

Mrs. Martin also has made a name for herself. "Queen of the Daredevils." She will drive in several of the show's most dangerous stunts this afternoon.

Among the thrillers on Martin's program are an "end for end roll over," "double truck jump," "skee jump through a burning wall of death," and a double slide and skee jump.

95 Enter East Lake Appreciation Meet

East Lake's appreciation golf tournament, for which the prizes are being donated by Dick Garlington and the entire proceeds are being given to the negro workers of the club, is turning out to be a huge success. To date there are 95 entries in the tourney which is to end this Sunday. It is an 18-hole affair with handicaps applying.

Entries who have already played their rounds and are not satisfied with their scores can re-enter and play again with the payment of another entrance fee.
